2 Hostages Believed Alive, Premier Wants More Talks

MONTREAL (UPI)—Two political hostages kidnapped by the terrorist Quebec Liberation Front were reported alive today by the FLQ, despite expiration of deadlines set for their execution.

The separatist organization apparently was responding to a plea Sunday night from the Quebec premier that the FLQ negotiate with the government rather than kill the hostages.

The FLQ forwarded a letter to Radio Station CKLM from British Trade Commissioner James Cross, kidnapped a week ago. It was the first communication from him since Friday.

In the letter, Cross thanked provincial Premier Robert Bourassa "for saving my life and that of Mr. LaPorte." The FLQ Saturday night kidnapped Pierre LaPorte, provincial minister of labor and immigration.

The deadline on Cross' life, set by earlier FLQ communiques, was 6 p.m. EDT Saturday. LaPorte was to have been "executed" at 10 p.m. Sunday unless the FLQ's ransom demands were granted.

As the deadline for LaPorte passed Sunday night, Bourassa refused to concede the demands. But he broadcast an appeal to the kidnapers to provide proof LaPorte and Cross still were alive, and open negotiations with the government.

He asked them to specify the "mechanisms" of how they intended to release the two hostages, and to clarify contradictions in their ransom demands.

The FLQ replied in its communique today that its basic demands were the minimum they had agreed to last week—and end to the police search for the kidnapers, freedom for 23 jailed separatists, and an airliner to carry them and their families to Cuba or Algeria.

But in a radical departure from their past practice the FLQ set no new deadline for compliance with its demands. The communique added however, "our patience is limited."

The communique and accompanying letter from Cross were found in a street corner telephone booth by a reporter from CKLM, tipped off by an anonymous caller.

Bourassa received a "Dear Robert" plea from LaPorte Sunday, in which LaPorte pleaded with him in "the most important letter I may ever write" to agree to FLQ demands. LaPorte urged Bourassa to keep in mind that "I am the head of a large family."

LaPorte said his captors were determined men who would not stop their depredation until their demands were granted. He said that even if the government refused to yield, and he and Cross were executed the FLQ would just forge ahead, using the lives of other persons until their demand for the release of jailed comrades was granted.

Five Explosions In City

Dynamite Blasts Rock Rochester

DYNAMITE DANGER — Rochester was rocked by a series of dynamite explosions placed in public buildings. One building hit was the County Office Building. Shown are Fred Thompson (left) the watchman on duty and Fred Jentons. Thompson barely escaped injury as the blast exploded about 50 feet away. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (UPI)—Four dynamite bombs exploded within 10 minutes early today in downtown Rochester, damaging two government buildings and two churches. A fifth blast was reported later at the home of a union official.

Police said one explosion rocked the federal office building and one ripped through the Monroe County building, two huge stone structures a block apart. The blast at the county building caused slight damage to a bank across an alley.

The two predominantly black churches hit by the dynamite bombs were within a mile of the office buildings.

Police had thought two explosions were touched off at the federal building, but later determined only one had occurred.

One injury was reported—a man hit by flying glass at the federal building.

Five persons were picked up for questioning after the explosions. One was charged with loitering near the scene of one of the blasts, police said.

"We can't piece anything together," a detective said when asked if the five blasts were related.

Police department logs showed the court house explosion was first reported at 12:42 a.m. EDT, one church at 12:46, another at 12:50 and the ones at the federal building at 12:53.

The explosion at the home of Dick Clark, a business manager for the Operating Engineers Union, was reported 20 minutes later. It is three miles from the scene of the other explosions.

A police official said dynamite was apparently tossed through a basement window at the county building. Several offices on the first and second floors were destroyed and a number of windows were shattered. County Manager Gordon Howe estimated the damage at $100,000.

Fred Thompson, the building's night watchman, told police he was less than 50 feet from the explosives when they were thrown through a window down a basement stairway.

"I felt the jar and then the basement filled with smoke," he said. "I had to go upstairs to get some air in a hurry."

Rufus Terry, a night watchman at the federal building, said there were two nearly simultaneous explosions on the east side of the building. He told police he heard the explosion in the basement, then ran out the back of the building into an alley.

There, he said, were three sticks of dynamite smoking on a platform. He ran away and heard them explode when he got to the front of the building.

The other explosions were at the New Bethel Methodist Episcopal Church and the Greater Bethlehem Pentecostal Church on Pennsylvania Avenue. Damage was slight in both cases.

One investigating officer speculated the explosives may have been stolen Friday in nearby Brockport, where 89 sticks of dynamite were taken from a truck headed for a construction site.

In New York City, a small bomb placed in a planter outside the New York Hilton exploded early today, shattering windows and rousing guests in the modern luxury hotel.

There were no injuries reported.

Three 10 by 12-foot windows were blown into the north side of the hotel on West 54th Street in Manhattan when the pipe bomb placed in the sidewalk planter exploded. "It was a low yield cordite bomb which caused little damage," said Fire Marshal John Corey.

"There was no fire and we'll have to examine it further."

Witnesses said they saw five men in African clothing running from the area of the hotel near the city's theater district.

Five men were picked up for questioning shortly afterwards, but police released them and said "we have no suspects."

Nixon Stumping Connecticut

(Combined Wire Services) WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon, taking the "non-political" wraps off his domestic trips, turned to Connecticut today to launch a concentrated White House drive aiming to help Republicans win control of the Senate in the Nov. 3 elections.

Nixon was expected to spend most of his time campaigning for GOP candidates during the next three weeks. Aides said the pace would accelerate after Congress adjourns Wednesday. Nixon scheduled appearances in Chicago Thursday and Friday to boost the candidacy of Sen. Ralph T. Smith, opposed by Democrat Adlai Stevenson III.

Nixon will go to California Oct. 27 to put his prestige on the line for Sen. George Murphy, who is in a tough race with Democratic Rep. John Tunney. The President also has been asked to appear in Florida, New Jersey, Ohio, Vermont, Texas and Tennessee before election day.

Nixon departed from Washington for his one-day Connecticut visit.

Accompanied by his wife Pat, Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Elliot Richardson and several top aides, Nixon planned to brief about 80 Northeastern newspaper and broadcast executives and host a buffet at Hartford. He planned an afternoon Columbus Day appearance in Stamford, Conn., revolving around the dedication of a new Italian community center.

Nixon hoped to spotlight Rep. Thomas J. Meskill, candidate for governor; Rep. Lowell Weicker Jr., Senate candidate; and Richard Kilbourn, Robert Steele and Stuart McKinney, candidates for Congress. Mayor Ann Ucello, another congressional candidate, was designated Nixon's welcome to the second game of the World Series Sunday between constant telephone calls from Washington. All along his route through Connecticut, Nixon lined up Republican candidates to appear prominently with him.

Foremost among them was GOP Rep. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., candidate for the Senate seat of Democrat Thomas Dodd, who is running as an independent. Also in the race is the Democratic primary winner, the Rev. Joseph D. Duffey.

Duffey is national chairman of Americans for Democratic Action.

Republican House members and mayors who might benefit from the Nixon coattails also were assigned slots in the Connecticut welcome for the President.

Nixon had planned to fly directly from his winter home in Key Biscayne, Fla., to Connecticut, but in a switch of plans, announced Sunday afternoon, he was making an overnight stop at the White House.

A White House spokesman said the chief executive, who did not leave Washington until late morning, wanted to be in his oval office early in the day to attend to unannounced business.

Thousands Visit Saugerties Mum Festival

Thousands of visitors strolled through the spacious gardens of Seamon Park in Saugerties during the weekend and many stayed for the fifth annual chrysanthemum festival musicale Sunday afternoon sponsored by Saugerties Rotary Club. Performing were Singout Saugerties, a youthful choral group; the Catskill Glee Club and Nan Dickman, who offered organ selections. Many visitors were still viewing the vast display of mums when the lights were turned on in the evening. Next Sunday's program will include an art show from 1 to 4 p.m. sponsored by the Woman's Club of Saugerties. A series of organ presentations have been programmed including Mrs. Donald S. Fellows, Mrs. Jane Tonnesen with Stefan Locost, violinist and Susan Martin at the console. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Supreme Court Sitting On Key School Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court began a two-day hearing today on the pace of public school desegregation in three key Southern districts as a first step toward a fresh definition of the constitutional rights of black children and the obligations of school boards.

All major aspects of the desegregation problem, including massive busing, racial balancing and desegregation of neighborhoods, are in the test cases from Charlotte-Mecklenburg County, N.C.; Mobile County, Ala.; and Clark County, Ga.

Civil rights lawyers and the black families they represent are demanding a decision that finally insures "all black school children their right to a desegregated education."

The Charlotte-Mecklenburg and Mobile school boards, defending the moves they have already made, want minimal busing, preservation of the neighborhood school system and continuation of a number of all-black and all-white schools in their districts.

The Clark County school board, meanwhile, is appealing for imposition of a strong integration plan, one the Georgia Supreme Court invalidated on the theory the 1964 federal civil rights law prohibits racial balancing and busing for balance.

And off to the side, in the stance of a moderate counselor, is the federal government, accusing the Charlotte-Mecklenburg and Mobile boards of attempting to perpetuate segregation but denying the Constitution gives black children an absolute right to attend integrated schools.

The NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund has told the court, "The goal required by the Constitution is that every black child, at every grade in his educational career, must be free of assignment to a 'black' school."

The Mobile board questions this. It asked the court in its brief: "Does the mere existence of a school with a student body made up of students all of one race, in a public school system that is otherwise completely integrated and unitary, render the school system constitutionally deficient?"

The government, reflecting President Nixon's stated preference for neighborhood schools, told the court "It does not require, as an a priori constitutional standard, racial balance or integration of every all-white, all-Negro or predominantly Negro school."

A Narcotics Crackdown— Saugerties, Ellenville Arrests

By WALTER S. CLARK

SAUGERTIES

Investigation conducted by village police officials involving narcotics and implements adapted for administering drugs, led to the arrest during a raid at a Livingston Street apartment of five persons including two teenagers.

Meanwhile, Ellenville village police reported the arrest of a 21-year-old Long Island woman on a warrant charging her with criminal possession of an implement capable of using in the administration of narcotics.

Police Chief Gordon Keeley of Saugerties Police Department said the arrests of the first persons were made Sunday after police, assisted by Thomas F. Mayone, chief investigator for the office of District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca, went to the Livingston Street residence to check a complaint.

Patrolmen Harry Vickery and Marvin Osborne, assisted by Officer William McPeck took into custody, Arthur Arnold, 23, of 14 Livingston Street, and his brother, James, 19, same address. They were charged with criminal possession of dangerous drugs in the sixth degree, and criminal possession of implements adapted for use of narcotic drugs.

Both defendants were arraigned before Village Police Justice David Goble. Pleas of innocent were entered and in lieu of $500 bail each the two men were committed to the county jail pending a hearing on Wednesday.

Also arrested were 20-year-old George Moe of Route 2, Box 306, Saugerties. He was charged with criminal possession of dangerous drugs sixth degree and criminal possession of implements adapted for use of narcotic drugs in lieu of $500 bail pending a hearing.

Police also booked Linda Jenkins, 21, of Liberty Street, Kingston, on charges of criminal possession of dangerous drugs sixth degree and possessing implements. She was released in custody of relatives pending a hearing on Wednesday.

The fifth person arrested was identified by police officials as 18-year-old Patricia Spelino, of Saugerties. She was cited for criminal possession of dangerous drugs and having in her possession implements adapted for administering drugs.

The Saugerties woman also was charged with criminal possession of dangerous drugs—heroin. She pleaded guilty to possessing dangerous drugs sixth degree involving marijuana, police said. Judge Goble sentenced her to 10 days in the county jail on that count, and committed her to jail in lieu of $500 bail on the other two charges, according to authorities.

Police said the narcotics charges against the other four defendants involved marijuana.

Authorities said the investigation will be continued.

Meanwhile, Ellenville village police reported the arrest of 21-year-old Shirley Reid of 10 East Dean Street, Freeport, L. I., formerly of Ellenville, on a charge of criminal possession of hypodermic instruments. The arrest was made by Sergeant Jack Phillips and Patrolman Charles Freer on a warrant issued by Police Justice Ronald W. Elias, following an investigation by police.

The woman pleaded innocent to the charge at arraignment and requested an attorney. Judge Elias assigned Herbert Weinsoff as counsel to represent her at future proceedings.

Hearing was adjourned until Tuesday and the defendant was committed to the Ulster County jail in lieu of $1,000 bail.

Chest Fund at $70,000

KINGSTON Anthony Triulzi, general campaign chairman for the 1970-71 Ulster County Community Chest fund drive, announced today that 17.5 per cent of the current Community Chest goal of $400,000 has been reached at the end of the second week of the campaign.

Triulzi released the figures at the first progress meeting of the Chest's Campaign Cabinet, and added that similar meetings would be held each week until the end of the campaign to keep both the Chest workers and the public fully informed as to how the 1970-71 fund effort is progressing. According to Triulzi, the 17.5 per cent represents $70,000 in funds collected or pledged. The chairman said this year's drive is $10,000 ahead of this same time in the campaign last year. Besides Triulzi at the meeting, the majority of the $70,000 received so far by the Ulster County Community Chest represents monies received from the Pacemaker section of the campaign which is made up of the Corporate, Banking, and Leadership Divisions, as well as from the Industrial Division.

Man Jailed, Threat Charge

KERHONKSON

A 27-year-old man was in the Ulster County Jail today awaiting an examination following an incident and threat he allegedly made Saturday night at Herman's Bar and Restaurant in this community.

State Police at Ellenville received a complaint that a man engaged in an argument with patrons at the restaurant and later left threatening to return with a gun.

Troopers F. H. Steiner and O. E. Gray went to the establishment to investigate and later they saw a car pull into an alleyway nearby. Upon checking the vehicle they found Frank Palagyi who gave his address as the Brookside Hotel, this hamlet. A search of the vehicle disclosed a rifle and ammunition, troopers said.

Palagyi was charged with harassment and arraigned before Wawarsing Town Justice Maurice Rosenstock. He pleaded guilty and while in court the defendant allegedly told the judge and troopers that he was glad he was stopped because he had planned to shoot everyone in the restaurant.

Judge Rosenstock reserved sentencing and committed the man to the county jail where he will undergo an examination, authorities said. The investigation is continuing.

Few Days Left To Pay the School Tax

KINGSTON

Taxpayers of the Kingston School District Consolidated are reminded that only a few days remain in which to pay the first installment of the 1970-71 school tax without interest.

Edna S. Morgan, collector treasurer of the district, said all payments for the first installment must be in the hands of the collector by Thursday, Oct. 15. The office of the collector is in the George Washington School on Wall Street and is open for collection from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. each day.

Because of Columbus Day observance today, the office had closed.

If the first installment is not paid by Oct. 15, two per cent interest must be added from Oct. 16 to Nov. 15 and three per cent from Nov. 16 until Dec. 15 will be assessed for interest.

State Politics—Verbal Blows, Also Harmony

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

While the three candidates for the U.S. Senate exchanged verbal blows in their first television debate in New York, the gubernatorial contenders were models of peace and harmony at Buffalo's annual Pulaski Day parade.

The senatorial hopefuls were in general agreement Sunday to the issues of crime and protecting the environment, but expressed differences on American foreign and economic policies.

The generally good humored discussions between Republican Sen. Charles E. Goodell, Democratic Rep. Richard L. Ottinger and Conservative party nominee James L. Buckley included, however, a few personal swipes. Ottinger described Buckley as a man who had wanted to bomb Red China. Buckley said the charge was "conjured up out of a mist."

Goodell accused Ottinger of profiting from companies that contribute to pollution. Ottinger said the attack was "a typical campaign slur."

Buckley said Goodell wanted to "throw in the towel" by advocating a timetable for withdrawal from Vietnam. "Is it really throwing in the towel... after seven years...?" Goodell replied.

Meanwhile, in Buffalo, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and his Democratic opponent, Arthur J. Goldberg, marched in the parade through Buffalo's large Polish-American section. Rockefeller, who had never been invited to the parade in his 12 years as governor, was grand marshal of the event and led the 3,500 marchers.

Goldberg walked at the rear with Erie County Democrats, who have delivered the county to the Democratic contender in the last two gubernatorial races.

When Rockefeller arrived at the reviewing stand, he asked Goldberg to join him. The offer was accepted and the two exchanged friendly remarks.

Buffalo Mayor Frank Sedita noted: "Isn't it wonderful—they're shaking hands, exchanging pleasantries and loving each other here, but tomorrow they'll be trying to knock one another's head off."

There was much less politeness in broadcast interviews during the day. Goldberg, on the WNBC-TV "Searchlight" program, said Rockefeller was "out-Agnewing Agnew" by charging the state Democratic party had been taken over by extremist elements. Such language, he maintained, "appeals to the basest instinct of the people."

The governor said the Vice President's reference to Goodell as "the Christine Jorgensen" of the Republican party was "a most unfortunate selection of words. Rockefeller was interviewed on the WINS 'News Conference'."

Dr. Paul L. Adams, the Conservative candidate for governor, said on WCBS TV's "News-Searchlight" that the gubernatorial race was very close. Adams insisted he was a "serious candidate."

Rockefeller won three newspaper endorsements Sunday. The New York Daily News called him "the logical and best choice."

The Utica Daily Press and the Utica Observer Dispatch said he had been a "good governor" and that Goldberg lacked "intimate knowledge of the state." The televised debate between the senatorial candidates, on WABC-TV, was seen in the New York area and in Albany, Elmira and Binghamton.

All three candidates called for stronger law enforcement, a crackdown on narcotics importers and sellers and reform of the court and prison system.

Goodell and Ottinger called for immediate withdrawal from Vietnam and stronger support for Israel. Buckley endorsed the Nixon Administration's Vietnam policy and contended that America must protect its interests and freedom in the world.

Discussing the economy, Buckley accused his opponents of participating in a congressional spending binge which he said aggravated inflation.

Goodell urged federal aid to state and local governments. Ottinger called for wage and price controls.

"WHITE CANE WEEK" — Town of Ulster Supervisor Carmine Sabino has proclaimed the week of Oct. 11-18 as "White Cane Week." During this time, the Town of Ulster Lions Club will be conducting a fund drive for the benefit of local persons needing assistance for eye care and programs for the youth of the community. Roger Merz, chairman of Sight Conservation, stated that a depository for all eye glasses has been set up in the Branch Post Office at 35 Vincent Street. Anyone having an old pair of glasses they wish to donate may deposit them at this location. (L-R) Herz; Richard Nace, president of Ulster Lions Club; and Sabino. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Nixon Blessings on Agnew—Goodell

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Nixon approved in advance, Vice President Spiro Agnew's attacks on Sen. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., according to Life magazine.

The magazine said Sunday that Nixon decided just before leaving for Europe last month that the administration - critic Goodell had to go "over the side."

The report by free lance writer Brock Brower on the nationwide "Agnew Blitz" also says one Agnew staff member favors an even stronger role for the vice president in the three-way New York senatorial campaign.

"At least one man (on the vice president's staff) would like to see Agnew publicly — not just indirectly — support Goodell's Conservative Party opponent, James L. Buckley," Brower wrote.

"But the risks involved in openly backing a long shot like Buckley do finally bring into sharp focus the real limitations on even the vice president's imposing political presence.

Only Richard Nixon, of course, could ever give the order to bring Buckley aboard.

"In fact, only Richard Nixon could decide to put a Goodell over the side, and did so just before he left for Europe."

Agnew sees nothing strange about an attack on Goodell, who has been a frequent critic of administration policy.

"Well, first of all, let me say I didn't read Senator Goodell out of the party," the vice president is quoted as saying. "He read himself out of the party by his conduct and his actions in the past year — maybe a little longer than that."

In a New York radio interview Sunday, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said he had called the White House to ask that Agnew "stop the longrange bombing" of Goodell. Rockefeller appointed Goodell to the Senate to fill out the term of Robert F. Kennedy.

Cocaine Use on Upswing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Law enforcement agencies on both the East and West coasts have detected an apparent sharp increase in the use of cocaine among drug addicts.

The Justice Department's Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs so far this year has seized 203 pounds of Cocaine — five times more than from among the hippie community.

A narcotics bureau spokesman said part of the increase is due to stiffer enforcement, but he conceded there has been a substantial upswing in cocaine sales in the United States — with many customers coming known as a "speedball."

He also said there is evidence many heroin addicts are adding a bit of cocaine to their "fixes."

Heroin acts much more rapidly when mixed with cocaine and the combination is known as a "speedball."

Firm Laird View On Soviet Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — The failure of U.S.-Soviet arms control talks and other negotiations could lead to a major boost in American military spending within a year, according to Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird.

The warning came Sunday in a joint appearance of Laird with Secretary of State William P. Rogers in which the two administration leaders took a two-handed, firm-hard approach to recent Soviet attacks on U.S. peace proposals for Indochina and the Middle East.

Laird's defense spending remark exemplified the hard approach.

"Unless we have success in SALT (Strategic Arms Limitation Talks) and these other negotiating areas," he said, "we are going to have to face up to some hard, tough decisions here which could require a tremendous increase as far as defense expenditures are concerned."

Laird said as a matter of fact some new arms programs have been held up pending the outcome of the SALT talks being conducted in Vienna.

When asked how long the United States could afford such a delay, Laird responded: "I don't believe from the standpoint of a defense planner, we can delay these decisions more than 12 months."

Rogers took a slightly softer approach to Soviet intentions when he said recent statements from Moscow attacking U.S. peace proposals in the Mideast and Indochina may be public window-dressing.

"The public position they take in the press doesn't necessarily coincide with the official attitude," the nation's top diplomat said. "It's certainly disappointing, but I hope in private discussions they'll act differently."

Rogers and Laird appeared in a special hour-long version of ABC's "Issues and Answers." When asked about a recent

Soviet press description of President Nixon's five-point Indochina peace plan as "a great fraud," Rogers said it "is standard Communist propaganda, which we expected...."

"I have a feeling that the Soviet Union and Hanoi will both give very careful consideration to the President's proposal because of the tremendous support that the proposals have received not only in this country but all over the world."

But Laird, expressing the on-the-other-hand approach that often marked the appearance, declined "to make any prediction as to the outcome" of the U.S. peace drive.

The secretary of state also seemed willing to give Moscow more of the benefit of a doubt concerning the recent hardened Soviet position on the Mideast peace plan being pushed by the United States.

He said the official Soviet response has not come in yet to recent U.S. statements alleging Moscow helped Egypt violate the Arab-Israeli cease-fire but "on the other hand, there have been indications from the Soviet Union and Egypt that they would like to extend the cease-fire" sponsored by the United States.

In spite of his lack of full confidence in Soviet intentions, Laird said President Nixon's proclaimed "Era of Negotiation" had not fallen into a time of confrontation.

But Laird also said Soviet arms production has strong momentum, "while we are going down." It was at this point he made the warning about a big increase in U.S. arms spending if U.S.-Soviet negotiations fail.

Laird had happier news to report in discussing the progress of President Nixon's plan to transfer the bulk of the Vietnam fighting to the South Vietnamese.

Area Business News

How do you like living in a forgotten county?

Most of us are fed up with what's happening here in Ulster and Dutchess Counties.

The rising taxes. The rising prices. The rising unemployment. The growing drug problem. Increased crime.

But in spite of our cries of protest the politicians up in Albany don't seem to want to listen to us.

In fact, it seems that our own State Senator doesn't want to listen to us, either. (I don't think a State Senator can fix all these things, but I think he can do something. And in 4 years I don't think our man has done anything.)

Which is why I'm running for State Senator. My name is David Lenefsky and I'm angry about all these things.

I think it's reached the point where we can't sit back and wait for the politicians any longer.

"Ulster and Dutchess, the forgotten counties. I'll make Albany remember them!"

We have to help ourselves. So if I make it up to Albany I'm not going to do what our present State Senator has done. I'm not going to say thanks for electing me. And now goodbye.

I'm going to help you organize yourselves. Into groups fighting for better food prices. Groups fighting the drug problem. Fighting for more state aid so we can cut back taxes and hire ourselves some more police protection.

There's a lot to be done. But I'll stand with you on the outside. And work for you on the inside.

I think it's time we put the people back into politics.

The politicians up in Albany have had their chance. And where has it got us?

Let's elect David Lenefsky State Senator

Paid for by the committee to elect David Lenefsky State Senator. Frank F. MacMartin, Treasurer.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, OCTOBER 12, 1970

School Lunches

National School Lunch Week currently is being observed and its significance to New York State residents is manifest in the daily serving of over a million and a half well-balanced, nutritious lunches in 4,420 state and private schools. The widespread acceptance of the importance of a good lunch to the health and well-being of children is shown in the growth of the school lunch program.

President Nixon signed new legislation to amend the National School Lunch and Child Nutrition Acts and to improve all child feeding programs. The act authorizes additional funds to help expand the school lunch program for all children and provide free or reduced price lunches for every needy child. The President said the school lunch and food programs in day care centers and summer camps can have an important impact on the life of those who participate in them. Because the student who is well fed is more attentive and learns better, improved nutrition can help children break out of the cycle of poverty.

The program operates under the provisions of the 1946 National School Lunch Act. The federal government contributes cash and food amounting to about one-fourth the total cost of the program and meal payments and funds received from state and local sources make up the balance.

This project is the nation's largest consumer of so-called surplus foods. Foods already purchased by the federal government under price support programs find their way into the diets of children rather than into the warehouses and costly storage.

Last year, the federal government spent about $20 million in cash assistance for the New York program. Nearly half of the contribution was earmarked for milk. In addition, federal food commodities valued at $20 million also were made available.

This week the Kingston Consolidated School District, along with other area school districts, is observing the 23rd anniversary of the project. Down through these years, the school lunch staff has proved to be a good provider and dedicated menu planner.

Recognition by the people that it builds strong bodies and alert minds, the school lunch program has become firmly established as part of the educational system.

$100 Million Campaign

The greatest television campaign spending splurge in any off-year election has begun. For congressional races alone, the candidates are laying out $100 million, according to a liberal fund-raising group, the National Committee for an Effective Congress. Of this, it is estimated that half will go to produce and buy air time for television—and, to a minor extent—radio commercials.

With all 435 House seats and 33 Senate seats at stake, the average advertising expenditure for twice the number of 468 seats—to provide for major opposition candidates—is about $100,000. But much more is being spent by individual candidates. Senate campaigns by both parties in California, New York, Ohio and Texas are likely to run around $6 million. In gubernatorial races, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York is said to be spending at least $2.5 million to get his fourth successive term.

Specialists in media advertising say that it has now become an article of faith that political success turns on such subtle distinctions as the brevity and meatiness of the announcements, and that an ample television budget and a skilled media man can rescue the obscure from darkness and corral the voters on election day. Apparently, they think they can "package and market" a candidate like they do soap. They could be fooled if there are enough intelligent voters, using their own heads, and who have read newspapers to find out the actual statements, in their own context, of the candidates.

Proper Care Needed

America has plenty of land to meet its farming, ranching, forestry and living space needs for the foreseeable future, according to a survey by government soil scientists and conservationists in 3,087 of the nation's 3,135 counties.

If "we take care of it."

A "Conservation Needs Inventory" reveals that the nation's land, thanks to continually increasing efficiency, is feeding and clothing an increasing population even with reduced acreages.

Since the previous inventory in 1958, population has increased 24 million, yet cropland has declined by 10 million acres and privately owned pasture and range has decreased by three million acres.

In the same period, 11 million acres were added to urban and built-up areas and—a figure to warm a conservationist's heart—9.5 million acres were added to forests.

On the other hand, the scientists warn that three-fifths of the present cropland, 67 per cent of pasture and range and 62 per cent of private forestland is not being treated with proper conservation measures to avoid deterioration.

David Lawrence Says Peace Move Must Come From Soviet, Red China

WASHINGTON — President Nixon said last week that all the nations involved in the fighting in Indo-China "except one" are ready to agree to the cease-fire he outlined in his address to the nation. He was clearly referring to North Vietnam. But there are two more — The Soviet Union and Red China.

The war which has been going on in Indo-China for the last several years could not have been fought without the military arms supplied by Moscow and Peking. The government of North Vietnam would not for a moment make a decision without consulting these two communist regimes.

It is time for the whole world to be informed as to the extent of the involvement of the Soviet Union and Red China in the aggression by the North Vietnamese against its neighbors. The big communist powers have spent huge amounts of money for supplies to enable a small country like North Vietnam to maintain substantial warfare against an army of more than a half-million men sent by the United States to aid the South Vietnamese forces. Hence, the real decision for peace will have to come from the Soviet and Red Chinese governments, which hold an almost dictatorial influence over North Vietnam.

President Nixon has recognized this point, and a public appeal has been made to Russia by the state department to persuade North Vietnam and the Viet Cong to accept the peace plan. The spokesman says:

"We would like the Soviet Union to use its considerable influence with the North Vietnamese and the provisional revolutionary government (Viet Cong) for acceptance of the new United States proposal."

There was no previous diplomatic conference with the Soviet representatives, with the exception of a telephone call to the Soviet Ambassador just before the broadcast by the President on Wednesday night. The main proposals were outlined at that time by Secretary Rogers. In the conversation, no explicit request was made for Russian support, but it is expected that the secretary of state will do so at meetings now scheduled with the Soviet Foreign Minister, Andrei Gromyko, at the United Nations on October 16 and 19.

Mr. Nixon's peace plan is a sensible one. If it were to be considered only by the North Vietnamese, it might be accepted overnight. But the war in Indo-China is part of a campaign waged by the Soviet Union and Red China, respectively, to increase their power and influence on the Asian continent. When the aggression was planned, help was made available by Peking and Moscow. The victim — a small country which is associated with the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization — sought the aid of the United States and obtained it. Nobody would have thought five or six years ago that the North Vietnamese would have been able to get the weapons or the supplies to carry on a prolonged war against a large American army.

The United States ought to make public all the information it has concerning the flow of ammunition, planes and weapons to the North Vietnamese, and the data as to how much has been spent each year by Moscow and Peking to sustain the movement against the South Vietnamese and, of course, against American forces.

The struggle actually has been between the Soviet Union and the United States. Peace cannot be arranged without the consent of the Moscow regime, which in turn, is reluctant to act unless assured that its rival — the Peking government — also concurs.

Peace is not a matter, therefore, of an agreement between the countries in Indo-China which are the objects of aggression, on the one side, and the Hanoi government on the other. South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos have more than one enemy — namely, the Soviet Union, Red China and North Vietnam. No cease-fire will be worth anything unless it has the support of all three.

President Nixon is trying to help small countries defend their right of self-determination. As long as major powers insist, however, on encouraging acts of aggression and providing money, military supplies, technicians and equipment to carry on wars of aggression, there will be little chance that any cease-fire, even if agreed upon, will last very long.

The truth is that, without the approval of the Soviet Union and Red China, the peace plan offered by South Vietnam and its allies will be fruitless, because North Vietnam is the pawn of Moscow and Peking which seek to dominate both Asia and Europe.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

As a part-time, amateur, no class Prophet of Doom, I must concede that we have forgotten how to laugh at ourselves. I've been sitting at this typewriter listening to a commentator and a gasoline commercial cut in and someone said they had "taken the lead out." Well . . .

We are, at this moment in history, a ridiculous people — all muscle, no brains. As a nation, we know a little about everything and all about nothing. We may be the only country in history that supplied weapons to both sides (Israel and Jordan) and then called for a cease-fire. By the way, did we ever locate that hidden headquarters of the North Vietnamese in Cambodia?

An old friend, Matty Simmons, is now putting out a magazine called National Lampoon, which satirizes and parodies our finest institutions. A guffaw may be good medicine. God knows we're all tired of breast-beating. In the lead editorial, Douglas C. Kenny writes that, secretly, President Nixon has been planning the Rock Festival of All Rock Festivals, to be staged in the Grand Canyon.

A million students are expected and many of the supergroups — such as Sly and the Family Stone, Joplin's and Hendrix' ghosts and the Beatles will be there. On the third day, four aerobic aces of the Blue Angels will perform in the sky. Three will sky-write "peace" in the Azure sky. The fourth will drop the Bomb. The magazine has a series of shopping lists. One is called Ted Kennedy and consists of one hero sandwich, one case of Irish whiskey, one firm, ripe tomato and one goose (cooked). Another dish is called Noah and requires 200 tons of raw meat, 400 tons of birdseed, one bottle of Airwick and one shovel.

The Sammy Davis Jr. is easy to prepare: 2 pounds of collard greens, one package of matzo's and a half bottle of Murine. The philosophy of Milton Berle, which has the depth of a drop of water on the Sahara Desert, is: "If you put the Vietnam War on ABC, it will be cancelled in 13 weeks." Mrs. Agnew says that she gets nervous every time she passes a "76 gas station, because she thinks that's the year he would have been President.

A new way out organization is called Mothers for Marijuana. Perhaps it isn't so far in the stars, because, as the editors explain: "What with her husband coming home twice and the kids running out of the house . . . the average American mother's life isn't easy." "Mothers for Marijuana" was founded by a $25 seed grant from Tony Curtis . . .

The National Lampoon prints an advertisement which points, with some anguish, to articles I have already missed.

"The David and Julie Eisenhower True Love Romance Comic Book"; "CosmosCo: The Mafia's Annual Fiscal Report"; "I am Curious (Big Yaller)"; "The Day Jim Bishop Was Shot"; "Save Our Threatened Nazis," etc. The President's Commission What's What came back with a magnificent two-word report: "Beats me!"

"Knock Knock." "Who's there?" "J. Edgar Hoover." "Oh, wow!" "Don't Crush That Dwarf, Hand Me the Pliers" (New Hymn). Tribute from President William Tubman of Liberia to Spiro Agnew: "I regard him as a brother." Bumper Sticker: "When ice picks are outlawed, only outlaws will have ice picks."

Another organization, newly formed, is called "Terrorists for Peace." The explanatory note depicts a group of Afro-haircuts shouting: "Might may not be right, but it sure beats hell out of laying down in front of George Wallace's ho' rod."

The Lampoon has its own poll. The readers were asked what they thought of the Organized Band of Troublemakers.

The responses: They're Trying to Take over this country 91 per cent; Give them an inch and they'll take a mile 91 per cent; They don't have any respect 91 per cent; They ought to go back where they came from 91 per cent; They don't make them like they used to 91 per cent.

Reading this elegant trash, one is left with the conclusion that everybody in America hates everyone else. No one admires anybody. The premise, of course, is comedy, because we are a nation of sappy sentimentalists — who have a credo: Do unto others before they do it unto you. . . .

Jack Anderson Says Russians Tighten Military, Economic Grip on Egypt

WASHINGTON — In the dark hours following Gamal Abdel Nasser's death, the Soviets sought to tighten their grip on Egypt.

The maneuvering for power began, according to intelligence reports, scarcely 45 minutes after Nasser's heart attack. Soviet Premier Alexsei Kosygin mixed into the backroom struggle immediately after his arrival in Cairo.

He huddled separately with the various rivals and kingmakers. Three generals who accompanied him from Moscow also held urgent talks with Egyptian military commanders. One intelligence report said that a high-ranking Soviet group, dressed in fatigues, inspected Egyptian installations on the west bank of the Suez Canal.

The Soviets had some powerful trump cards to play in the backrooms. They have entrenched themselves in the most vital areas of Egyptian life. Here are a few compelling reasons why the Egyptian leaders listened attentively to Kosygin's quiet counsel:

Soviet Entrenchment

The Egyptian armed forces depend upon Russia for all their weapons, replacements and spare parts. The army's 1,500 field artillery pieces and 1,000 tanks, the air force's 415 combat planes, the navy's 12 submarines and four of its five destroyers came from the Soviet Union. The entire anti-aircraft system — including the latest radar, SAM-2 missiles and Soviet-manned SAM-3 missiles — was provided by Russia.

An estimated 10,000 Soviet military men are stationed in the United Arab Republic. Over half are engaged in training Egypt's 250,000-man army. Soviet officers are attached to Egyptian units down to the battalion level. Soviet advisors are assigned to commando forces down to the company level. Soviet pilots are training the Egyptian air force. Indeed, Russians actually fly the 100 supersonic MIG 21J interceptors, operating out of fields under Soviet control.

Russia is pumping heavy economic aid into the impoverished country. The most dramatic projects are the Aswan dam and the Helwan steel works. But the Russians are also helping to build several small factories throughout Egypt. For this purpose, the Kremlin has put up a $1 billion credit. The Egyptians also depend upon the Soviet Union to buy 70 per cent of their cotton crop.

At least 4,000 Soviet engineers, economists and technicians are now working in Egypt. They supervise the Soviet-financed projects and advise all ministries dealing with economic matters. Most secret of all, Soviet intelligence agents have completely infiltrated the Egyptian government, armed forces and political party. They are so entrenched and entwined in the various ministries that the Egyptians probably could never clean them out.

With all these aces, Kosygin was able to block Zakaria Mohieddin, considered the most pro-western of the Egyptian leaders, from ascending to power. Kosygin probably would have preferred to install Aly Sabry as Nasser's successor. The suave Sabry is known to have accepted expensive personal gifts from the Russians. But to keep peace at the top, Kosygin agreed to the compromise choice of President Anwar Sadat.

Footnote: The Central Intelligence Agency estimates that 300 to 800 Russians have already been killed in the Middle East fighting. The Soviets maintain a discreet silence, however, about their people in Egypt, both living and dead. Soviet servicemen and civilians alike are unobtrusive, keeping to themselves and seldom appearing in public. When servicemen are given rare permission to relax in Cairo, they almost never wear their uniforms. They are also more likely to head for the nearest shoe store to buy new footwear than to carouse in the bars and night clubs.

Lettuce and the Law

Congressman Burt Talcott's law firm in Salinas, Calif., is pulling legal strings to help the local lettuce growers break a six-week strike organized by Cesar Chavez's farm workers.

At the same time, Talcott is doing his part in Washington to see to it that his firm's clients never suffer the inconvenience of a strike again. The handsome Republican has introduced a bill to make such strikes illegal.

Talcott denied vigorously to this column that his bill to outlaw farm strikes had anything to do with his law practice. His firm, Pioda, Leach, Stave, Bryan and Ames, represents a host of growers in legal action to end the walkout.

Talcott said he was merely "of counsel" to the firm, an arrangement which gives him a prominent spot on its letterhead but which pays him nothing.

"I haven't drawn a penny in over five years," Talcott said. "I haven't practiced law for more than 20 minutes since I came to Congress."

Talcott said he kept his affiliation with the firm when he was first elected in 1962 to facilitate an orderly transfer of his clients' affairs to other lawyers in the firm. He acknowledged, however, that the affiliation also gave him the option of returning to the firm in case the voters should turn him out of office.

His bill, in addition to barring strikes and lockouts, would provide for arbitration by a special five-man board. It would also guarantee farm workers bargaining rights, but not under the National Labor Relations Board. Instead, it would create a new Farm Labor Relations Board.

Significantly, a committee of the Salinas Chamber of Commerce, hardly a pro-labor group, has called for legislation almost precisely like the Talcott bill.

Goldberg Lacks Political Confidence, But Still Threat

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

NEA Washington Correspondent NEW YORK (NEA)—Arthur Goldberg has more "credits" and less "debts" than any Democratic gubernatorial nominee in New York in 12 years, but he is suffering from most of the maladies that have long afflicted his party's races for this crucial office.

For openers, there is evidence and much conviction among the experts here that Goldberg's campaign seriously lacks money, is badly disorganized, reflects inadequate scheduling and reveals painful internal strains among his top advisers.

It is a common view, too, that in his effort to unseat Gov. Nelson Rockefeller after the latter's three terms, Goldberg is proving to be one of the most dismal campaigners imaginable.

A former high labor official, cabinet member, Supreme Court justice and ambassador to the United Nations, this Mr. Respectability seems far out of his element on the campaign trail.

Obviously a very nice man with a gracious but evidently sly manner, Goldberg comes across as wooden and detached in personal contact, ponderous on the platform, arrogantly self-sufficient.

How all this is working out can be judged in part from the fact that the Goldberg forces now have called in from Washington Fred Dutton, former aide to the Kennedys and a recognizable "play doctor." He would not be in this state unfamiliar to him if trouble were not dogging Goldberg.

There is said to be tension among such key strategists as Stephen Smith, a Kennedy brother-in-law, and Joseph Crangle, Erie County (Buffalo) Democratic chairman who sits nearly at Goldberg's elbow in his Fifth Avenue campaign office. Though present there, too, able State Chairman John Burns is believed to be shunted aside.

While the high skills now common to paid television presentations are being applied to Goldberg's effort, his personal outings are generally miserable. He has developed a reputation for canceling engagements on account of fatigue, even though his schedule is skimpy. I watched him walk through a newspaper plant on a "greeting tour" and it was one of the most incredibly inept performances in my memory.

Moving into a room with perhaps six or eight girls at desks, he would shake hands with two and just bow in princely style to the rest. I saw him approach two men standing side by side and shake hands with one but not the other. When clusters did gather around him and melt some of his reserve, he still showed lingering unease.

At his headquarters, most people are afraid to call him "Arthur." He prefers "Mr. Justice," and his own joke about his wife calling him that doesn't help.

Some of his staff people were incensed when no pictures of Israeli Premier Golda Meir and Goldberg hit the newspapers at the time of her visit to New York. The word is the candidate refused to let them be taken, and also earlier wrote her a letter turning down offers of "Help" in his campaign. He is supersensitive to possible charges he might exploit the troubled Israeli situation among New York's millions of Jews.

In what seems a highly defensive gesture, Goldberg lately has taken to wearing a large, bejeweled American flag pin in his lapel. On a tour it offended a long-haired young man in dungarees who inquired testily: "Does he always wear that?"

Difficulties notwithstanding, Goldberg is a tough adversary for Rockefeller. His grip on the big Jewish vote is plain. With black State Senator Basil Patterson running with him for lieutenant governor, Rocky's heavy 1966 cut into the black vote may be slashed in two.

Still, the "arrogant" Goldberg lacks political confidence. Wistfully, he says his campaign is different. It sure is.

Freeman Readers Write Letters to Editor

Oct. 3, 1970
Editor, The Freeman:

Today, the House of Representatives has an important opportunity to do justice by securing to the Alaska Natives a fair settlement to their land rights. The Natives—60,000 Eskimos, Aleuts and Indians—have requested title to 40 million acres of land—only 10 per cent of the land that has been theirs from time immemorial. The Alaska Claims Settlement Act of 1970 (Senate bill S.1830) passed on July 15, 1970, provides the Native peoples with title to only 10 million acres of land, less than 3 per cent of the 550 have valid claims. The Alaska Natives depend upon the land and its waters for their present livelihood, hunting and fishing for subsistence as they always have. The land is also their chief resource for sharing in the economic growth and development of the State and nation, and equally important, it is the foundation of their rich and varied cultures.

The cash compensation offered in the Senate bill in return for extinguishing Native land rights will result in a net economic loss to the Native people. The present value of the land for subsistence hunting and fishing purposes, as well as its long-range commercial value, greatly exceeds what the Senate grants in cash settlement.

Please urge Congressman Hugh L. Carey and William Pitts Ryan of our state, who are members of the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, to enact legislation that will confirm to the Native villages of Alaska title to 40 million acres of their ancestral lands.

A Political Issue
Editor, The Freeman:

Contrary to pro fluoridationists' claims, authorities by no means agree fluoridation benefits the teeth and the danger of toxicity is ever present.

In 1962 our Public Health Department reported that the children in Newburgh, New York, where water was first fluoridated, had more decay after fluoridation than before.

In Baltimore, Maryland, where water has been fluoridated since 1952, rampant decay has steadily increased.

In Puerto Rico not only has tooth decay increased since fluoridation of the water supply, but 64 per cent of adolescent boys have mottled permanently stained teeth from fluoride excess. This information was taken from world famous nutritionist: Adelle Davis' book, Let's Eat Right to Keep Fit.

Fluorine has been shown to be harmful to many of the body's enzyme systems and drinking fluoridated water has become a common cause for allergies. It increased the brittleness of teeth and bones. In 1963, the American Journal of Diseases of Children emphasized editorially that fluorine was always a potential poison; adding it to the water supply was unwise, unnecessary, wasteful and very expensive.

Fluoridation is now a political issue. It would be very interesting to know who stands to profit by it. Certainly the choice as to whether rat poison is to be included in the diet should be left to each individual and not be imposed upon him by having the entire water supply fluoridated at great cost to the taxpayer.

I think Mr. Clarence Eklund hit the nail on the head when he wrote in National Fluoridation News, and I quote: "In my opinion, to write an article about fluorine and not mention civilization's God, profit, is a waste of time."

Love One Another

October 9, 1970

Editor, The Freeman

Forty years ago I left this little rivertown. I traveled and I met people of all types. I met ministers who cried in my home because they were too old and the church didn't want them any more. I worked for social clubs among old folks; I ate and dined with Park Avenue, Shore Road, South Hampton and from there to the Bowery Mission, to the hospitals, to Bellevue's mental wards, where lawyers walked the floor with their brief cases, their mentality completely gone, the sick on the island, completely forgotten by their children and all they wanted was a kind word, a smile, a promise that you would care again, something they could look forward to. I have never met an old person I couldn't love: this word (cantankerous) I have read in The Freeman must belong to folks that have not had a Christian father and mother. In our home we were taught to be kind and to love old people. I have found out that a person who sees faults in others are the ones that need mental help. The kids today told me we have no place to go so we do other things for kicks. What about 50 years ago when the boys stole your front gate, marked your house up, pushed your toilet over; this is all forgotten.

In a small town there are always cliques or groups even in the best of clubs. I know I joined three here and resigned all of them that didn't say I feel they are cantankerous. No! No! I love them just the same. I simply pity them because I have outgrown them. They never had the chance to see and feel what I have. I have never met an old person, man or woman, who I couldn't love and listen to their cares. As God said, "Go yee forth and love one another as I have loved you." If people would see folks not as old pitiful creatures or kids as demons how much better they could enjoy their lives.

Pollution of the Mind
Editor, The Freeman:

Bookstands throughout Kingston and the surrounding areas are loaded with literature that is both un-American and obscene. Much of this literature denounces America with adjectives that only perverted minds could come by. Associating four letter words with GOD is common, as well as with our churches, our President and our society in general. Sad to say this literature is readily accessible to our children. Do our children have to be subjected to this type of reading material?

To be sure there are many people who are not aware as to how un-American and filthy this literature is. But also there are many people in all categories of our society that do realize what a serious problem this is to our country's future and our children's future. I am a firm believer in the 1st Amendment which gives us Freedom of the Press; but people are taking unfair advantage of this freedom when they print literature of this calibre and type.

It behooves the parents, the clergy and men of our law and order system to visit the local bookstores and see for themselves the type of literature that is available. Morally speaking, we have come to a time in our society when we must ask ourselves the question: "Do we care?"

New Abortion Law
Editor, The Freeman:

To date more than 12,000 children have been killed by abortion in New York hospitals since the new abortion law was inflicted upon us. One of the more sophisticated methods used in our "civilized society" to assure the death of these children has been described by a nurse as follows: "Up to twelve weeks the Kerslake method is used. It is a system of vacuum cleaning the womb, floating in it." (The Wanderer, July 9, 1970).

The new abortion law, which singles out one sector of our society and legalizes its recognizable bits of baby slaughter, causes you to subsidize the killing of these little children through taxation. Is this how you want your tax money to be used?

Ask your legislators H. Clark Bell and J. P. Rolison Jr. to completely and totally repeal this heinous abortion law we now have — this law which forces us to subsidize the murder of innocent children. Please do not accept a revised law which merely has these children killed sooner. A child at 12 weeks is the same child — with arms and eyes and little fingers and a beating heart — that it is at 24 weeks. As far as the child and the use of your tax money is concerned, nothing is changed by killing these children sooner.

Please write and speak out on this subject. Doing nothing assures the continued use of your money and public hospitals to destroy human life. The price of waiting is about 200 children each day in this State. If we will not defend the life of a child now, by what right will we expect others to defend our own life in the years to come?

Campus Unrest

Editor, The Freeman

You reply to my letter about the President's Commission on Campus Unrest indicates that you too have not read any of it directly but only parrot the Agnew diatribe.

Certainly the learned members of the commission who spent three months delving closely into the problem deserve to be at least read directly and not judged only by comments made by those who have studied neither the problem nor the report.

Since you have given ample room in your paper to Mr. Agnew, and even more room to an unimportant series on Catholic doctrine, you should, as a public service, print the review of the commission in its own words.

Blue-Collar Workers Favor Demos; GOP Making Headway in South

By GEORGE GALLUP

Copyright, 1970, American Institute of Public Opinion. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with written consent of the copyright holders.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 10

— Republican efforts to woo blue-collar workers, especially those in the middle income groups, are not meeting with appreciable success. On the other hand, the GOP can take great comfort from the new voting pattern emerging in the thirteen states that make up the South.

Vigorous support of President Nixon's Vietnam policies by many top labor leaders has led many Republican strategists to believe that the Republicans, in the approaching congressional elections, might win a substantial number of blue-collar workers away from their traditional support of Democratic candidates.

Moreover, the relatively heavy vote cast by this group for Wallace in the 1968 election could be interpreted as a vote against the Democrats and their civil rights and welfare programs.

But survey figures, at least in the early stages of the race for the nation's 435 congressional seats, do not reveal much change in voting preference of blue collar workers throughout the nation. When the voting preferences today of manual workers with incomes of $4000 and over, are compared with those of a similar group in 1966 — the last off-year Congressional election — little change is indicated.

Manual Workers
With Incomes over $4,000*

	1966	1970
Republican	32%	30%
Democratic	60	59
Others	2	1
Undecided	6	10

*Includes other members of these households.

These percentages are based on surveys completed in September, 1970, and in October, 1966. Both surveys embraced more than 3,000 persons, including 700 manual workers in each set of surveys.

Breakup of One-Party System in the South

Looking toward the coming election, and future ones, the Republicans now have at least a fighting chance to win control of the House with the gradual breaking up of the one-party system in the South.

In twenty congressional elections since 1928, the GOP has won control of the House in only two — the elections of 1946 and 1952. In fact, in this period, the GOP has had a majority in the House only twice in five sessions of Congress during which a Republican has occupied the White House.

While GOP presidential candidates were winning approximately half of the votes of Southerners in presidential elections following 1948, it was not until the off-year congressional election of 1962 that the grip of the Democrats on the South — at the district level — began to weaken.

Until the election of 1962, the Republican party could expect to win only a handful of seats in the 13 states comprising the South. As late as 1960, the Republicans were able to elect only 9 of 120 Congressmen from this area, as the following figures show:

Seats Won in the South by:

Year	Dem.	Reps.	Majority
1960	111	9	102
1962	105	14	91
1964	101	18	83
1966	92	27	65
1968	88	31	57

The great imbalance created by a one-party system in the South, and the problem it has posed for the Republicans, is best demonstrated by this simple arithmetic:

When the Republicans won only 9 seats in the South they had to win 209 outside the South to make 218, or a majority. This meant they had to win 209 of 315 seats or approximately two-thirds of all seats outside the South.

Today, this hazard has lessened. The GOP won 31 seats in 1968 in the South. To win control of the House it would have had to win 187 outside the South to make 218. Presently there are 316 seats outside the South. Therefore, the Republicans to win control of the house in 1968 would have had to win 59 per cent of all seats outside the 13 states of the South.

While Republican candidates are meeting with increasing success in many states, there are still many congressional districts where Democrats have no opposition. At last report, a total of 45 seats in the South will not be contested by Republicans in the present election.

The decline in Democratic strength during the last decade can be demonstrated in percentages as well as in seats, as shown by the following table:

Percentage of Popular Vote in South Won by:

Election	Dem.	Reps.
1958	80%	20%
1960	75	25
1962	67	33
1964	67	33
1966	65	35
1968	64	36

Survey percentages dealing with the preferences of voters in the South for democratic versus Republican candidates and reported earlier show the situation today approximately the same as in 1968.

Even a little lead causes about as much pollution from hydrocarbon emissions as fully leaded gasoline.

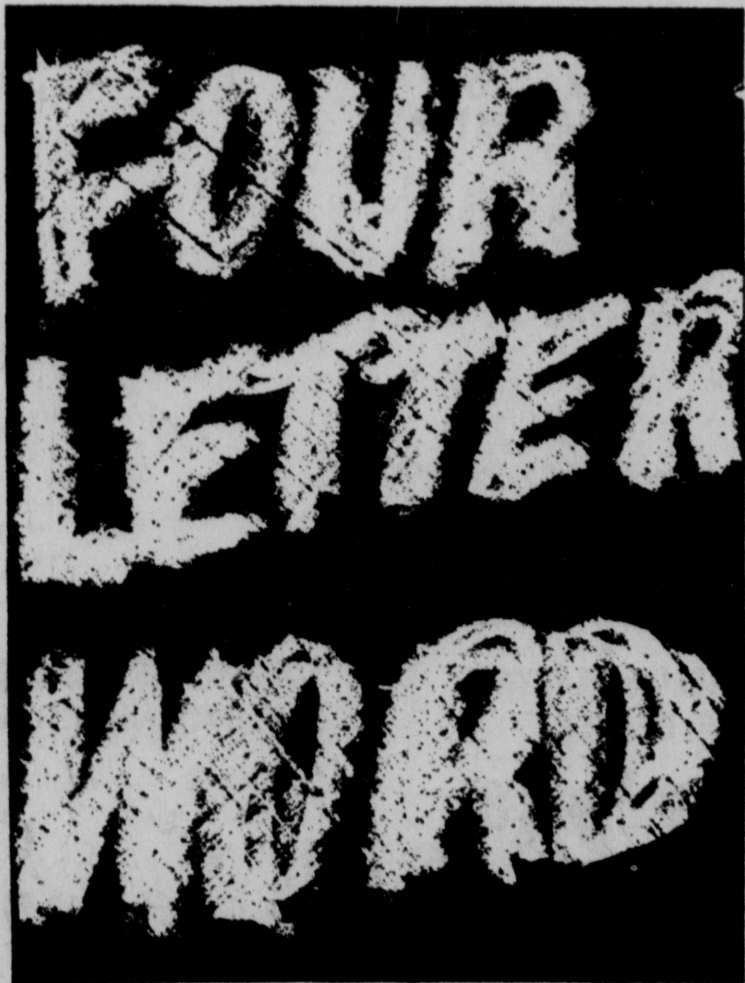

Lead-Free AMOCO® has no lead. None.

How about "low-lead" gasolines you've read about? Are they as good for the air and your engine as Lead-Free AMOCO Super-Premium? Let's end the confusion. "Low-leads" have one thing AMOCO hasn't. Lead. And even a little lead causes about as much air pollution from hydrocarbon emissions as the fully leaded gasolines you're using now. This was shown in a major auto manufacturer's test. AMOCO Super-Premium has no lead additive to cause pollution. And it can't cause corrosion. So it can double your spark plug, muffler and tail pipe life. And AMOCO Super-Premium gives you better mileage than any leaded premium. "Low-leads" admit they won't work in all cars. Lead-Free AMOCO Super-Premium is the only gasoline, "low-lead" or no-lead, made for all cars, new or old

Set Art Show At Bard College

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON The next professional art show this year at Bard College which will consist of paintings and drawings by Lennart Anderson, the New York figurative painter.

The show will open formally at a public reception Oct. 13, from 8-10 p.m. at the Art Center, and will continue until Nov. 7.

While abstract art has long been in favor with the general public, Lennart Anderson has staunchly pursued the figurative idiom in his own work and recently has won both respect and admiration for his original vision.

His work has an affinity with the purity of Morandi and the uncompromising toughness of Cezanne, yet his own voice is always the most striking aspect of his work. Clement Greenberg has called him one of the most interesting contemporary figurative artists.

Anderson received his training at the Art Institute of Chicago and the Cranbrook Academy, and also studied with Edwin Dickinson at the Art Students League. He has been in a great many group shows, both here and abroad, and has been collected widely.

His work can be found in the Whitney Museum, the Brooklyn Museum, and the Joseph L. Hirshhorn collection, as well as in the private collections of Elaine de Kooning, Roy Neuberger, and many others. His work is represented by the Graham Gallery in New York.

Anderson has taught in many institutions, including the Art Students League and Yale University. He is now a Visiting Lecturer in drawing and painting at Princeton University.

Originally a performer at Sun Valley, Idaho, Kerchner served under the same banner at the Pierre Hotel in New York City for many years. His band consists of both local and new talent from the metropolitan area.

The Kiwanis musical show, with a cast of 80, will be performed the nights of Oct. 22, 23 and 24 at the Kingston High School Auditorium. It is a parody on the exploits of traveling tourists in seven popular travelmeccas around the world.

Local Kiwanis Club members are selling tickets to the show held annually to raise funds for the club's scholarship program and boys and girls projects.

Four Burglaries, $360 Taken at Two

KINGSTON Four burglaries over the weekend including an unsuccessful attempt to pry open a safe at the Central Branch of the Kingston Trust Company, were under investigation today by Kingston detectives. About $360 in cash was taken in two burglaries.

Nothing of value was reported missing from the bank, police said.

8-Year-Old Boy Hurt in Mishap, Ran Into Auto

KINGSTON An 8-year-old boy was injured shortly after 5 p.m. Sunday when he reportedly ran into a car stopped on Broadway at Van Deusen Street, according to police.

Robert Gatton of 128 Tremper Avenue, was taken by Fatum's Ambulance to Benedictine Hospital and treated for an injury of the left leg. The car involved was operated by Marcelle Roniario, 48, of 90 Highland Avenue, Tenafly, N. J., who told police she was southbound on Broadway when she stopped in a line of traffic.

The woman said the boy ran from the sidewalk into the right front fender of the vehicle. The boy fell to the pavement.

Another accident occurred Friday on Route 44-55 near Ski Mini and resulted in injuries to Patricia Tuttle of 63 Windy Hollow Way, Staten Island. She was taken to Ellenville Community Hospital by Fatum's Ambulance and treated for injuries of the back and stomach, an attendant said.

Fatum's ambulance also responded to a call for another traffic mishap which occurred Sunday afternoon in New Paltz. Joseph Panzato of 44 South Putt Corners, New Paltz, was taken to Vassar Hospital for treatment of undetermined injuries. The same ambulance service took Wayne Chambers, 21, from the State University College, New Paltz, to Kingston Hospital for treatment of an injury of the right knee which he sustained playing football.

According to Detective Sergeant William Slover, police were notified Sunday morning that a rear window at the bank had been smashed and entry gained. Police said an attempt was made to pry open a safe, and drawers in the tellers area were pried and ransacked. A cabinet door also was forced.

A break-in was reported at the Tri-County Business Machines Inc., 448 Broadway where entry was gained by prying open a rear door. Investigation disclosed $152 missing from a cash register.

Another burglary was reported at the Dairy Queen Brazier Suppliers at 474 Albany Avenue, where a rear door had been forced open. Police said $208 in cash had been taken from the office.

The fourth break-in was at the Pilgrim Furniture Company, 107 Greenkill Avenue. Police learned that a vent unit on the Prospect Street side of the building had been pried and entry gained. Nothing of value was reported missing, according to investigators.

Shokan Man Hurt in Crash

KINGSTON Howard Otti, 29, of Mountain Road, Shokan, received a fracture of the right leg about 10 a.m. today in an auto accident on Route 28.

He was taken to Kingston Hospital by Fatum's Ambulance.

According to State Police, the accident occurred just north of the Kingston traffic circle.

Urges FDA Rule

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A House committee has urged the Food and Drug Administration to prohibit trains from dumping untreated sewage on railroad tracks.

The House Government Operations Committee, in a report following hearings, suggested a ban on all waste dumping by December, 1974, with a requirement that all new toilet-equipped railroad cars constructed after March 31, 1971, be provided with facilities to treat wastes.

Urgent Israel Word On Financial Aid

By United Press International Israel is at the crossroads of "destruction or deliverance" and needs financial aid from American Jews on "an unprecedented scale," Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said Sunday.

Eban, in a speech at an Israel bond drive dinner in Washington, called for "Jewish solidarity and heightening intimacy between Israel and the United States." He added that "all previous goals are now irrelevant to the situation and to the needs of Israel" and it must have money to support its defense efforts.

While Eban was asking for money, Premier Golda Meir said in Jerusalem Israel would not resume the Middle East peace talks unless Egypt and the Soviet Union withdraw missiles installed in the Suez Canal cease-fire zone. However, she said Israel was willing to continue the cease-fire itself.

Egypt announced it will be ruled by a collective leadership, probably a triumvirate with acting President Anwar Sadat himself before the national continuing preparations with possible confrontation of Soviet at its head. U.N. Delegates Mull Policy Statements

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Two days before the beginning of the U.N. General Assembly's 25th anniversary summit session, delegates were still struggling today to finish two policy statements for adoption at the end of the session.

The assembly's Main Political Committee was arguing about rival Communist, Western and Latin American resolutions for a Declaration on Strengthening International Security. A vote tonight was possible.

In the Economic Committee, the industrial powers and the developing countries were battling over a declaration setting the goal for the Second U.N. Development Decade, 1971-80.

In the rival resolutions on security, eight Moscow-line sponsors scored "military occupation," Australia, Belgium, Canada, Italy and Japan called for regional handling of regional problems; and 20 Latin American countries demanded disarmament and economic development.

In their draft for a development decade declaration, 89 developing countries sought a promise from the industrial powers to try to build up their official foreign aid to 0.75 per cent of their gross national product by 1972. The United States, Britain, Australia and Japan proposed to eliminate that target.

Strikes, Sabotage Leave Italian City Isolated

REGGIO CALABRIA, Italy (UPI)—A new round of strikes, sabotage and street fighting touched off by political rivalries left this major southern city isolated and battered today.

Scores were injured Sunday in clashes in scattered areas of the city. Three policemen were shot and wounded and several explosions rocked the city.

Authorities said all road, rail, air and sea links between Reggio Calabria and the rest of the country were severed because of barricaded highways and strikes.

The violence Sunday was the worst since fighting last month which killed two men and injured more than 300. It also was the fifth consecutive day of disorders sparked by demands Reggio Calabria be named capital of the new Calabria region.

The national government chose Catanzaro, a smaller inland city, as capital of the region in July. Disorders immediately broke out in this poor and backward city of 153,000 on the toe of the Italian boot and have continued intermittently.

Expensive Ride For Cabbie As Fare Disappears

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UPI) — In a reverse of the old con game, an upstater has taken a New York City cabbie for a long, expensive ride.

A "theft of services" complaint was out today for an unidentified man who allegedly took a cab from New York to Syracuse, then jumped out and fled without paying.

The tab, according to cabbie Danny Schimienti, was $200.

Schimienti told police the middle-aged man hailed his cab at the Port Authority Bus Terminal at 41st St. and 8th Ave. Sunday morning.

They drove to one address on Syracuse's north side, and then Sunset Ave. on the West Side, when the passenger bolted out and ran away.

Schimienti's address was given as 1458 First Ave.

American Education Week

Shape Schools for 1970's

KINGSTON — "Shape Schools for the 70's" is the theme and challenge of this year's American Education Week observance, Oct. 25-31.

In announcing local participation, Louis A. Salzmann, Superintendent of Schools of the Kingston City Schools (Consolidated) and AEW chairman, called upon the entire community to join in the reassessment of the school's role in today's society.

"During the sixties," Salzmann said, "there was an awakening across the country to many alarming inadequacies in our educational program and during the seventies we must achieve marked improvement."

"We must face up to the new complexities of life," the superintendent said, "making sure our schools afford the student adequate and relevant experiences to enable him, on attaining adulthood, to be a contributing and self-respecting citizen, gainfully employed, and able to cope with his environment and fellow man." In addition to the traditional emphasis on school visitation by parents, good citizenship, and the need for strengthening and supporting the schools, this year's observance will focus on ways in which the schools might be changed and how more people can work together in shaping the schools for the 70's, including how to foster greater awareness in the individual of the opportunities to participate in directing the institutions that serve him, Salzmann commented.

American Education Week, held annually since 1921, is sponsored by the National Education Association, the American Legion, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers and the U.S. Office of Education.

Lenefsky: Senate Needs Overhaul

WEST SHOKAN
David Lenefsky, Democratic candidate for the State Senate, today called for "a major reorganization of the New York State Legislature," which he said, "is absolutely essential if our State is to have any real chance to resolve the complex problems we face. I want to see the Legislature reorganized so that it can do its job better."

that operates on a part-time basis — the Executive and Judicial branches work full time. Lenefsky cited four major defects of the present legislative system and he pledged "to work hard and full-time" to change it, if elected. "First, the short duration of the legislative session prevents careful consideration of important matters. Legislators meet only two or three days a week, and they stay in session usually no more than 4 months a year. Part-time legislators are a return to the 19th century, when the lawmaker had to consider a few pieces of legislation, and he had to stop his legislative function to return home for the planting and harvesting of crops. "The committee structure in the Legislature also needs change," Lenefsky said. "In addition to Senate Standing Committees and Assembly Standing Committees, there are also Joint Legislative Committees. The primary function of these Joint Committees is to dispense patronage in the form of staff appointments. This political give-away," Lenefsky said, "cost taxpayers two and a half million dollars each year. All Joint Committees should be abolished, and Standing Committees should be required to hold hearings throughout the year so that legislators can become competent in the complex issues we face in modern society. "Also needed," Lenefsky said, "is the expansion of homerule provisions to relieve the Legislature of the large quantity of local issues it now is forced to consider. More than 10,000 bills are introduced in each legislative session," Lenefsky explained, "and a great many of them should be handled exclusively on the local level and never come before the State Legislature. "A fourth change needed to improve the operation of the Legislature," Lenefsky said, "is to establish a public transcript of all legislative sessions, to be available to the public and the press. Legislators should be fully accountable to the public they serve," Lenefsky concluded, "and a transcript of all proceedings would help the citizenry evaluate their State representatives."

Nirenberg -- On Offense And Defense

KINGSTON
"In the face of soaring major crime in our county, the number of indictments procured by the District Attorney's Office has steadily declined over the last four years," said Alex Nirenberg, Democratic candidate for district attorney before a League of Women Voters Debate in Woodstock Wednesday night.

Nirenberg released figures showing that in 1966 the District Attorney's Office got 166 indictments, dropping to 128 in 1967, and then to only 90 in 1968 and 92 in 1969. Nirenberg, who personally with his staff accumulated the facts from the public records of the Ulster County Clerk Office, stated, "Now, as of Sept. 1, 1970 there have been only 40 indictments. This is unforgivable, considering that over this four year period of time the district attorney's staff has been increased."

"These figures take on even greater significance," continued Nirenberg, "when one realizes that in the last four years, the District Attorney's Office has only tried 23 felony cases to completion—that's an average of only six per year! This is shocking! This is an average of only 1 trial per man each year."

Continuing his attack on the drug pushers, Nirenberg named the five people who had been convicted for the sale of drugs out of the 108 indicted in the last six years, and challenged his opponent to name any more of these to back his allegation that Nirenberg's figures were "misleading" and "outrageous". There was no response, except an attempt by his opponent to offer excuses as to why the district attorney's office keeps making deals with those indicted for selling drugs, Nirenberg charges.

Nirenberg also named criminals in Ulster County who have time and time again been given soft deals on major crimes by the present district attorney's office only to have them "commit more serious crimes within weeks or months after they have been freed by our district attorney's office."

Nirenberg also added that not only had he handled 300 criminal cases in his 15-year law career, but that he defeated the Ulster County District Attorney's Office in every case where his client had to go to trial.

"Not only does this belie my opponent's charge that I only handled three cases, but it also explains why I, not he, was placed on the Criminal Law Committee of the Ulster County Bar Association," Nirenberg concluded.

Vogt Terms Drug Problem Local Plague

Francis J. Vogt, assistant district attorney and Republican-Conservative candidate for the office of district attorney today set forth his recommendations for combating the narcotics problem which is plaguing Ulster County.

Vogt stated that he feels that all sentences of persons convicted of selling narcotics should be mandatory and they should not be subject to suspension by the court. Vogt said that many drug sellers are first offenders and rely on that fact to get them a suspended sentence if caught.

Vogt further stated that he strongly favored a modification of the present law relating to the right of police officers to make search and seize evidence. Vogt advised that he would be in favor of permitting police officers to search any motor vehicle at any time without a warrant, as well as persons previously convicted of a violation of the narcotics laws. Vogt pointed out that the drug problem in Ulster County is due in great part to the change in the law resulting from a Supreme Court decision in 1961 which prohibits police officers from conducting searches without warrants. Vogt stated that he is wholeheartedly in favor of retaining that portion of law which prevents a search of a person's home by a police officer without a warrant but stated, "If we are to effectively control the drug traffic in Ulster County, the police must be given the tools to inhibit the transportation of drugs from New York City to this area."

Assessment Changes — County Takes a Step

By HUGH REYNOLDS KINGSTON

"The primary objective of our entire system of local real estate property assessment should be to bring about the equitable distribution of the real estate tax burden among all real estate taxpayers."

The statement by Thomas F. McGrath, counsel of the State Board of Equalization and Assessment, is not a new one, but the means to its end, is: the Assessment Improvement Bill passed by the New York State Legislature and signed by the governor this Spring.

Ulster County has already taken the first step in complying with that new law, the appointment of Jack Reynolds of Port Ewen as the county's assessor supervisor.

The bill provides for sweeping changes in the state's overall assessment program.

It required a single appointed assessor in each town and city in Ulster County, serving for a six year term of office. He will be required to meet minimum qualification standards and be required to complete training courses given by the State Board of Equalization and Assessment within one year of taking office. This single, appointed assessor will take office on Oct. 1, 1971.

The bill also requires, that in those towns where on Aug. 1, 1970 one or more of the offices of assessor is elective the legislative body of the town, no later than April 30, 1971, may adopt a law, subject to mandatory referendum, that the office of assessor shall continue to be elected. The local law is required to be adopted by April 30, 1970 and is required to be submitted to the people in a special election to be held before July 1, 1971. If the people approve the local law (keeping the elected assessor or assessors) the assessor will continue to be elected. The assessors will still have to take the training courses, however.

The Assessment Improvement Law also provides for the appointment by the respective towns (or city common council) of an assessment board of review of from three to five members, serving up to five years.

The boards of review will have the last word on assessments in the event of a grievance. Under the current procedure, the assessor makes the assessment, hears the grievance and makes the final decision. Court action is available to the taxpayer but it is often expensive and lengthy.

The new law also requires that each county prepare and maintain tax maps, termed "one of the most important tools in setting up and maintaining a good assessment system."

The counties are given nine years to complete tax mapping and are allowed one dollar per parcel in state aid for the program.

The bill requires each county to set up a real county tax service agency to work with and advise local assessors in improving assessment practices, procedures and utilization of modern equipment. Ulster County has done that with the appointment of Reynolds, an assessor from the Town of Esopus. The legislature also appropriated $5,000 toward the operation of Reynolds' office this year.

Under this new law, the state will also assist local assessors, upon their specific request, in the assessing of large industrial, commercial and utility properties. McGrath, the Equalization Board's attorney, noted in a speech in June before the Supervisors' and County Legislators' Association in Alexandria Bay, that "It doesn't take too much knowledge to distinguish between a $10,000 and $20,000 residence but it does require a great deal to distinguish between a 10 or 20 million dollar industrial plant or a one and two million dollar shopping center."

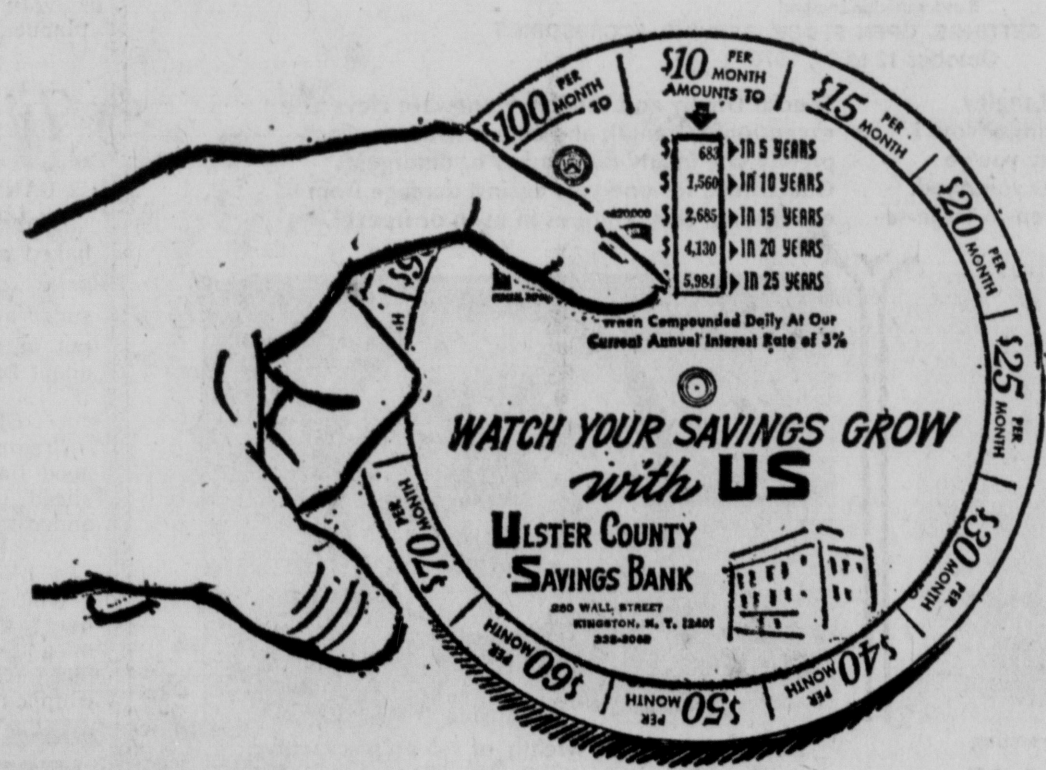

The State Board of Equalization and Assessment is currently in the process of setting up training schools for the host of assessors who will be required to attend and complete them next year.

Fall Festival—A Wide Appeal

KINGSTON Dutch Church manse at 109 Pearl Street.

With an intent to appeal to visitors with varied interests, Kingston's second annual Fall Festival will feature work in architecture, cooking, needlework, photography, music, gardening, antiques, and, of course, part of Kingston's history. Beginning at 11 a. m. Saturday, Oct. 17, 1970 with a welcome to Festival visitors by Mayor Francis R. Koenig, the attention-attracting beat of Indians' Drum Corps music, Kingston homeowners and merchants will celebrate preservation and progress of the 193 years since October 1777 when Kingston lay in smoking ashes as the troops of General Clinton came over the hill too late to save it from British flame.

The Festival is jointly sponsored by Friends of Historic Kingston and the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce. Tickets will be available at the Old Dutch Church and the Governor Clinton Hotel. Proceeds will be used for the preservation fund for the Dr. Luke Kierstede house, one of the earliest frame houses in the Old Stockade area.

One of the most interesting of the houses open to the public on Festival Day is the Cornelius Masten House, now the Old twentieth century homes at 27 and 45 Burgevin Street, the latter having a reproduction of the delicate spindle and narrow rail of the Senate House stairway. Another admired stairway is the gooseneck curve at the old Janssen house at 43 Crown Street.

Nineteenth century taste is illustrated by the columned Greek revival "temple" at 120 St. James Street while the house and the landscaped garden small brick town house at 106 St. James Street boasts original Chinese wall paper in its dining room.

Recipes for the Hudson Valley apple crop will be supplied by the Ulster County Home Extension service and will be given with the tickets. Antique lovers may admire the family heirlooms and acquired collector's items in the interiors. For garden lovers, Garden Club members will contribute flower arrangements for the open house and the landscaped garden at 106 St. James Street, 7 Green Street and 45 Burgevin will give outdoor pleasure.

The original portion of this house was built about 1749 of rubble limestone construction. This portion is flanked by frame wings added at a later date. For art historians, the interest in the house lies in the fact that it was the home of Miss Julia Dillon in the latter part of the 19th century, an artist noted particularly for her painting of flowers and the author of Old Gardens of Kingston.

Architectural styles in other open homes will range from the small story and a half Hudson Valley Dutch stone pre-Revolutionary house at 28 Green Street; two story stone 18th century buildings at 7 Green Street, 43 Crown Street and the DAR chapter house, and the practical use of 18th century architecture will be seen in mid-

Body Recovered
BREWERTON, N.Y. (UPI)—The body of Karl Dussing Jr., 44, of the Syracuse suburb of Camillus, was recovered from Oneida Lake about 400 yards off Toad Harbor Point Sunday, state police said.

Dussing had been missing and presumed drowned since Oct. 4 when his boat was found in the Big Bay area.

He lived at 107 Richard Drive.

Community Concert Series Sold Out

The Board of Directors of the Community Concert Association has announced that as a result of the membership drive for the 1970-71 season, all seats have been sold for the three concerts of the coming season. John McCullough, president of the Association said, "We have had our most successful campaign of the past 10 years and I am amazed and impressed with our wonderful team of workers, and grateful to the public for their enthusiastic acceptance of our program. I believe we had the proper combination of ingredients in our favor this past

May during our membership drive. I would like to publicly thank the Campaign co-chairmen, Mrs. W. E. Rylance and Mrs. V. P. Berardi, for a really superlative effort, and give special recognition to several of our workers whose help and determination inspired us all. The whole team did well but I would be remiss not to mention certain individuals, namely John Shults and Mrs. Ralph Harper of Kingston, Mrs. Leroy Atwater of Tannersville, and Mrs. Ernest Foss of Rhinebeck. These people were especially great!" "Our publicity," McCullough continued, "was splendid. The cooperation of The Daily Freeman, the local radio stations, and all the weekly newspapers was better than ever and we give them our warmest thanks. Of course, largely responsible for our success, I'm sure, is the extremely popular choice of artists for this season combined with a reasonable subscription price." On Nov. 16, on stage at the Community Theatre, the New Orleans Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra will be the first attraction in the Community Concert 1970-71 season. Werner Torkanowsky will conduct this great orchestra and Regis Pasquier will be the featured violin soloist.

Mrs. Harry Seitz, membership secretary, has announced that membership cards will be in the mail next week to all season subscribers. No one can be admitted to any of the concerts without a subscription card which is irreplaceable. Mrs. Seitz reminds members to keep their cards for the entire season because they will be required for admission to each concert. The dates for the concerts are on the reverse side of each membership card. Any questions concerning memberships may be addressed to Mrs. Seitz at 85 Washington Avenue, Kingston.

A JOB WELL DONE—John McCullough (L), president of Community Concerts in Kingston, congratulates Mrs. Ralph Harper and John R. Shults, two of the more than 100 workers, on their splendid results in the membership drive of the Association. The season series is now sold out. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

Presenting the program in room 213 of the Jacob H. Hasbrouck Building will be Miss Denise M. Abbey, who has traveled throughout the world and taken colored photos of famous gardens. It is entitled, "Gardens Out of This World."

Miss Abbey will show slides she has taken of the Williamsburg gardens in Virginia; the Bouchardt Gardens in Victoria, Canada; the Royal Palace gardens in Udaipur; the Warwick and Temple gardens in England; the Tivoli gardens in Denmark; the Keukenhof gardens in Holland; the Hamburg Gardens in Ravello, Italy; the Villa Medici gardens in Florence, Italy; and the International Garden Show in Austria.

Pryshepa-Schaff Wedding Announced Recently

MRS. CHESTER R. SCHAFF
(Lakeside Studio)

Atonement Lutheran Church in Saugerties was the setting for the wedding of Miss Sophie Louise Pryshepa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Pryshepa of 339 Katrine Lane, Lake Katrine, and Chester Ronald Schaff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester E. Schaff of 31 Spaulding Lane, Saugerties, on Saturday, Oct. 3.

The Rev. Richard E. Shemanske officiated at the double ring ceremony. Miss Mildred Gippert, organist, provided traditional wedding selections. Vases of white gladioli and chrysanthemums and pedestal arrangements of white gladioli decorated the altar and chancel. Satin bows marked the family pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin brocade gown fashioned with a fitted empire bodice, high neckline, bishop sleeves with long cuffs and a soft skirt which terminated in a chapel train. Her shoulder-length, four tiered illusion veil was fastened to a headpiece of brocade loops and flowers. She carried a bouquet of miniature white carnations.

Miss Paula Rogoff of Staten Island was maid of honor in a floor length, yellow nylon over taffeta gown, styled with long sleeves and a fitted bodice of gold velvet accented with a round neckline of gold braiding. A gold velvet bow held her short yellow veil and she carried a bouquet of yellow and orchid miniature carnations.

Bridesmaids were the Misses Brenda Hof, Kingston; Debra Spinnelli, Glasco; and Linda Pappalardo, Saugerties. Their gowns were fashioned identically to that of the honor attendant's but with purple velvet bodices and orchid skirts. They carried orchid colored miniature carnations and wore headpieces of orchid veils with purple bows.

Raymond L. Schaff of Peekskill was best man for his brother. Ushers were Charles Higgins, Woodstock; Gregory Lyke and Craig Guthrie, both of West Saugerties.

A reception for 187 guests was held at Flamingo Restaurant, Saugerties.

For her wedding trip to Santa Ana, California, the bride chose a turquoise, empire-styled dress with brown accessories.

The bride is a graduate of Kingston High School, class of 1970, and was employed at Food Fair in Kingston.

Her husband, an alumnus of Saugerties High School, class of 1970, was formerly employed by the American Plating Company of Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Schaff will reside at Santa Ana.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I'd like to pass along this little hint to mothers whose children like to paint and always end up with more paint on their hands than on the paper—messy, messy, messy! When you buy hair coloring kits be sure you save those little plastic gloves that come with most of the kits.

They are the perfect answer when the kiddos decide to give their artistic talents a workout.

Before they get brush in hand, just slip those little plastic gloves on their hands and then let them paint to their heart's content. Sure keeps little hands clean.

Karen St. Jean

LETTER OF LOVE

Dear Heloise:

I want to thank you for helping me to organize my kitchen, pretty up my bathroom, fix whole meals ahead of time and to be as nearly perfect a wife and mother as is possible.

I have three sons, and a hungry husband who also appreciate you because they get fed on time NOW... thanks to you.

A Heloise

... and thanks to you for those kind words. They are very much appreciated and so are you.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Recently it was necessary to remove ballpoint ink from my husband's almost new white dress shirt.

As a result of much scrubbing, etc., the ink was removed but the material in the shirt got a little roughed up (where the spot had been) due to all that scrubbing. I know now I should have used nylon net, but it was too late when I found out about it.

However, I managed to save the day by using a little sizing (sprayed on the spot) before pressing. Everything turned out fine and there's no telltale evidence.

CREPE GLAZE JEWELRY—Which accessories should I wear? That's a question every woman asks. This year, accessories are indispensable to complement the new fashion shapes. And since richly textured jewelry plays such an important role in achieving the 1970 look, you'll want a wide selection. Try making your own, with an easy technique called Crepe Glaze. Using vibrant colors of crepe paper and a glue/water solution, you can design an entirely new jewelry wardrobe.

Exciting Crepe Paper Jewelry Sparks Up Wardrobe

This year's fashion picture cries "Do your own thing!" But whether you've opted for the mini, midi or inbetween, it's the total look—the sum of many parts—that counts. And the accessories you choose to wear are an important part of that total figure.

What better way to personalize your own "put-together" look than by making your own jewelry. An easy technique, called Crepe Glaze, uses vibrant colors of crepe paper, a glue and water solution and your imagination to make a wardrobe of accessories for the coming months.

To make the jewelry, you'll need: Crepe Paper and Rainbow Crepe Paper in the colors of your choice, cardboard, a coffee stick, #10 wire, jump rings and earring findings, sheet plastic or glass, clear plastic spray and all purpose white glue.

Here's how to make the jewelry:

HAIR HOLDERS

1. Cut shapes from cardboard.
2. Mix a solution of one part glue to one part water. Cover a part of the holder with a generous amount of the glue/water mixture. While still wet, wrap strips of crepe paper, cut one-half inch wide across the fold and stretch, around the cardboard. Wrap one layer at a time, painting each layer with the glue mixture. Build up about three layers in this manner. Paint the top layer well with the glue mixture.

3. When the holder is thoroughly dry, spray with clear plastic spray.

4. To make pin, cover a coffee stick with a strip of crepe (cut one-quarter inch wide across the fold) using the glue/water technique. Wrap the crepe around and down the stick. Cover with a second layer and let dry. Spray with clear plastic spray.

BANGLE

1. Cut cardboard one inch or one and one-half inch wide by eight and one-half or nine inches long, depending on the size of your hand. (The cardboard should be long enough to fit over your hand when it is formed into a circular shape.)

2. Measure in one inch from lower left edge of cardboard strip. Draw a diagonal line from this point to the upper left corner and cut. Measure in one inch from upper left corner. Draw a diagonal line from this point to lower right corner and cut. Glue edges together using all purpose white glue. Cover both sides of joint with a strip of paper pasting to hold.

3. Cut crepe various widths across the fold. Unfold and cut into lengths about six inches long. Stretch crepe.

4. Mix a solution of one-half glue and one-half water. Apply glue/water mixture to a section of the bracelet. Wrap lighter color crepe (white and black were used) around the bracelet, one layer at a time. Apply additional glue/water solution after each layer. While still wet, wrap one row of dark crepe around each edge. Remove dark crepe and you will see that the colors have run together so that the high spots are darkened while the lower areas remain light.

5. Let bracelet dry overnight. Spray with clear plastic spray.

EARRINGS

1. Coat a sheet of plastic or glass with one-half glue and one-half water mixture. Using the Crepe Glaze technique, place strips of crepe paper on the plastic (or glass). The color will vary with the number of layers.

2. After it is completely dry, peel off and spray with clear varnish.

3. Make shapes from #10 wire. Apply glue to one side of the wire shape and place it on the crepe. Hold for a minute to firmly secure it. When dry, cut around the outside of the wire with scissors or a sharp knife.

4. Pierce holes through the tip of the earring with a darning needle and add jump rings or pierced ear findings. To jump rings, add screw back findings.

Tiny Tips

CUSTARD WITH MARSHMALLOW

When you are making individual baked custard, put a marshmallow in each custard cup before adding the custard mixture. Bake as usual. Youngsters like this!

PICKLED EGGS

Hard-cooked eggs may be added to the liquid leftover from pickled beets. Let the eggs stand in the beet liquid for a couple of days in the refrigerator, then serve these pickled eggs.

GRAHAM CRACKER SPREAD

Spread graham crackers with peanut butter; top each cracker with a marshmallow and broil. Serve to small fry with lemonade.

DEMI-TASSE

For gourmets: add a little orange-flavored liqueur to extra-strong black coffee and serve in demi-tasse cups.

TO MAKE TEA

Always pour boiling water over tea bags when you are making tea. Never pour the water first and then add the tea bags. Let stand five minutes for fairly strong tea.

Look Here Mrs. Homemaker!

VEGETABLE BUYMANSHIP

Remember these tips when you're shopping for fresh vegetables. Buy in season when quality is high; buy only what you can store properly and use without waste; avoid rough handling. And check this handy buying guide. Then clip and save it for reference, suggests Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist.

BEANS, SNAP — (Available all year.) Should be firm and crisp, with good color for the variety. Avoid wilted, seriously blemished, thick, or tough pods.

BEETS — (Available all year.) Should be a rich red color, firm, round, and smooth, with a slender taproot. Beet tops don't always indicate quality. Avoid elongated beets with scaly areas, or soft, wilted beets.

BROCCOLI — (Available all year.) Should have firm, compact clusters of small buds. Avoid those with thick stems, opened bud clusters, or yellowish color.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS — (Available from August to March; peak of season October to December.) Should be firm and bright green, with tight-fitting outer leaves. Avoid yellow or soft leaves.

CAULIFLOWER — (Available all year; peak of season September to January.) Should be white to creamy white, compact, solid, with clean curds. Slightly granular curds will not hurt eating quality if surface is compact. Avoid those with spreading curds, severe wilting, discoloration or speckled curd.

CELERY — (Available all year.) Should be light to medium green, with rigid stalks, and glossy surface. Avoid discolored, soft or pithy branches.

CORN — (Available all year; peak of season May to September.) Should have green husks, and be well covered with plump, not too mature kernels. Avoid wilted or dry stem ends; under developed, light-colored kernels, or very large, dark yellow kernels with depressed areas.

CUCUMBERS — (Available all year; most plentiful May to August.) Should be firm, well-shaped, and well-colored. Avoid large, overgrown, dull-colored, yellowish, or withered cucumbers.

LETTUCE — (Available all year.) Should be fresh, and bright green in color. Iceberg and romaine leaves should be firm and crisp; others softer. Avoid discolored, irregularly shaped heads, or those with overgrown central stems.

ONIONS, DRY — (Available all year.) Should be firm, covered with papery outer scales. Avoid those with large green spots and blemishes, wet or very soft necks, thick or hollow neck centers, or sprouts.

TOMATOES — (Available all year; more plentiful May to August.) Should be well-formed, smooth, and slightly soft with rich red color. Avoid very soft, watery, or cracked tomatoes.

Home Economics Division Displays Holiday Ideas

CHRISTMAS OPEN HOUSE — Each year the Ulster County Home Economics Division holds a Christmas Open House. This year more than 20 clubs from throughout Ulster County displayed their ideas for making the home festive during the holiday season. Table settings, baked goods, Christmas candles, stuffed toys and Christmas centerpieces were among the different ideas that were displayed recently at municipal auditorium. The Open House is held at this time so that ideas seen by the public can be utilized for this year. This function was open to the public and was well attended. Members of Wiltwick Homemaker's Club are pictured here with their exhibit entitled, Santa's Workshop. They are (L-R) Agnes Geary, Arlene Sanford and Ruth Rion, all of Kingston. Reds' Machine Needs Overhaul for Trip East

BEHIND THE BACK CALL — In what has to be the most controversial of the World Series thus far, Reds' Bernie Carbo comes sliding home in the first game at Cincinnati Saturday, only to find the plate blocked by Oriole Catcher Elrod Hendricks and Umpire Ken Burkhart. Ump makes the out call after falling down. Run in sixth inning would have tied the game. Orioles won 4-3. (UPI TELEPHOTOS).

Cop Guards Umpire In Second WS Game

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Ken Burkhart spent the second game of the World Series Sunday standing on the right-field foul line near the bullpen in Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium.

Several steps away from the National League umpire stood a policeman, who was right next to the stands.

The policeman was ordered to stand there by Cincinnati Reds' officials as a precautionary measure just in case any of the Reds' fans decided to personally take their ire out on Burkhart.

Although the umpire, who was behind the plate in the first game Saturday when he called Bernie Carbo out in the controversial play of the series, was the target of several verbal assaults, there were no incidents in the game.

However, even before it started, manager Sparky Anderson of the Reds made life easier for Burkhart when he labeled the umpire's decision, "the right call."

Anderson said, "I don't want any umpire out there to be crucified when he's not wrong and Burkhart was not wrong."

The play started when Tony Cline of the Reds hit a chopper right in front of the plate and catcher Ellie Hendricks made a diving attempt to tag Carbo coming in from third in the sixth with the score tied 3-3.

Burkhart, who was in the basepath to judge if the chopper was fair or foul, was knocked down by Carbo as he slid in and fell between the two players as Hendricks dived at Carbo.

"Sure, the way the play developed my man was safe," Anderson said, "but if Burkhart's not there, it's a routine play and Carbo's out by 10 feet."

"I think Kenny knew what happened and that's why he called him out. You can't blame the umpire for it."

"When a man's hustling, he's in good position, and he makes the right call. I'm not going to fault him. I'm going to give Burkhart credit for making the call and I'm going to tell him so."

"He called him out because he knew he blocked off Hendricks, and it was the right call," Anderson said.

Anderson admitted Carbo shouldn't have been running but said he took off from "instinct."

Anderson said, "I don't think Burkhart should have to carry this on his back, people thinking he made a mistake when he didn't. Also, we got beat 4-3 and the Orioles put three balls over the wall and that's what beat us. But if we got a few more runs, no one would even be talking about this play."

In describing his decision, Burkhart said, "It was one of those tough plays. I had to call the ball fair or foul first, that was No. 1 and it was only fair by about four inches. I was a little surprised when Carbo came in. I didn't see him and he hit me on the leg. It was one of those unusual plays that happens one in a 100 times. I called the play the best I knew how."

Burkhart, though, didn't say he called Carbo out because he was blocking the plate but because he saw Hendricks make the tag.

"When the catcher dived at him, that's when I saw the tag. I don't remember how I saw it," Burkhart said.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Cincinnati's sputtering Big Red Machine, overhauled twice in its own power plant by a relentless Baltimore wrecking crew, faced a total breakdown as the 1970 World Series moved today to the home town of the soaring Orioles.

The Orioles, buoyed by a five-run rally in the fifth inning Sunday, shaded the Reds 6-5 for a two-game jump in the best-of-seven series.

Game No. 3 Tuesday will match southpaw Dave McNally, Baltimore's 24-game winner, against Tony Cloninger, a journeyman right-hander who helped shore up the Reds' depleted pitching staff in the last two months—but has failed to complete any of his 18 starts.

"We're going to go at them again," Cincinnati slugger Johnny Bench promised after the Reds, favored at the start of the series, blew an early 4-0 lead Sunday and absorbed their second one-run setback in as many days.

"It changes over now to their ball park and we're two down, but I still think we can beat them. This ball club usually comes back. If we don't it's going to be a long winter," Bench continued.

So far the Orioles have made all the comebacks. They erased a 3-0 deficit before winning the opener 4-3 Saturday on Brooks Robinson's seventh-inning home run. And they struck back again Sunday to gain their 16th consecutive victory in a streak that began during the regular American League season.

It was the 42nd come-from-behind victory this year for the Orioles, who are driving to make amends for their stunning World Series setback at the hands of the New York Mets last October.

It also was the 42nd time they have won by the margin of a single run.

"People say we ran away with our division," said Harry Dalton, Baltimore's front office chief. "But we were in 55 one-run games out of 162. That's not what I call a runaway. It's just that we have played excellent ball against very tough competition."

"You can't say we smeared the daylight out of the Reds. We've just been a little better than them each day."

Returning to Baltimore's Memorial Stadium where they won 60 of 82 games, including the finale of their pennant playoff sweep over Minnesota, the Orioles are prohibitive favorites to capture the Series, possibly without a return to Cincinnati.

Boog Powell, the birds' hulking first baseman, slammed his second home run of the series to launch Sunday's comeback. But Frank Robinson, the former Reds' star who had hoped to excel before his old Cincinnati fans, was 0-for-9 in the two games.

But the Orioles were replete with heroes.

Catcher Ellie Hendricks, involved in a controversial play at the plate Saturday, sliced a two-run left field double to climax Sunday's fifth-inning explosion.

Relievers Tom Phoebus, Moe Drabowsky, Marcelino Lopez and Dick Hall checked the Reds after they cuffed 24-game winner Mike Cuellar for four runs, the first three in the opening inning as a result of two Baltimore errors and the other on Bob Tolan's homer in the third.

Bench homered off Drabowsky in the sixth after the Orioles go-ahead five-run rally.

Brooks Robinson, non pareil third baseman whose homer decided the opener after he made a spectacular stop to help quell a Cincinnati rally, took several more hits away from the Reds with his glove and singled home the tying run in the fifth.

"I think the fact that we're down 2-0 and their No. 4 hitter is 0-for-9 shows the type of balance they have," said Reds' spark plug Pete Rose, who has gone hitless in six trips to the plate.

"We don't have one big man on this club and that's what makes us tick," Frank Robinson explained. "When they stop one guy the others pick him up."

"And when we fall behind we don't get excited and we don't get down. We feel if we can get close enough we'll score when it counts and our pitchers will hold them."

That has been the pattern in both games as the Orioles short-circuited a Cincinnati team that was the scourge of the National League all year.

The Reds' frustrations peaked Saturday in the sixth inning when Bernie Carbo was called out at home by umpire Ken Burkhart on a high chop fielded by Hendricks at the plate. Sequence photos later revealed that Hendricks did not make the tag, that Carbo failed to touch the plate and that Burkhart, up ended by the runner, was not in position to make the call.

There were no rhubarbs Sunday, but a guard was stationed near Burkhart after the partisan Cincinnati fans greeted him with a barrage of jeers as he took his position along the right field foul line.

Despite the Reds' predicament, no team has won the series in its 66-year history after losing the first two games at home—Manager Sparky Anderson believes the machine will be heard from before it's over.

Orioles Have Pride

CINCINNATI (UPI) — "We have a certain amount of pride on this ball club," said Boog Powell, "and we're going to win the World Series this year to make up for last year."

The powerful Baltimore Orioles' first baseman said his team felt it should have won the Series against the New York Mets last year, "but we'll win it this time."

Powell clouted a 400-foot-plus home run into the centerfield seats Sunday and batted in another run in a five-run fifth inning as the Orioles defeated the Cincinnati Reds 6-5 for their second consecutive World Ser-

"It makes you feel great winning two games," Powell said. "I hit a fast ball down the middle for that homer. I've hit some farther, but I got that ball pretty good. I'll take 'em even if they get a little green paint on the ball going over the fence."

Powell broke the ice for the Orioles in the first game Saturday with a two-run homer over the left field fence.

"Boog is hot," Baltimore manager Earl Weaver said. "But everybody helped turn the game. We had the mood all the way. Our boys looked at the pitches the first time around and the second time they got the bat on the ball."

Weaver was elated with the win but said his brow was still wrinkled.

"I'm worried about Tuesday and silencing those Cincinnati bats. The Reds are tough. The Mets didn't hit us this good last year."

The Orioles came from behind to win both games, from a 3-0 deficit Saturday and from 4-0 Sunday. But it's old hat with Baltimore this year.

"We've come from behind 42 times this year," Weaver said, "and it was the 42nd one-run game we've won."

Bench, Rose See Change

CINCINNATI (AP) — John Bench and Pete Rose, two of its most vital wheels, thinks it's about time the Big Red Machine reversed gears in the World Series.

Cincinnati lost 3-0 and 4-0 early leads in the first games of baseball's postseason classic here to carry a 2-0 deficit into Baltimore today for the third game Tuesday.

"Maybe we have to change our plan," said Bench, the Reds' superstar catcher whose bases-empty homer was wasted in a 6-5 loss to the Orioles Sunday.

"We'll have to hold 'em and score late," he said. "This has been a different Series as far as the Big Red Machine is concerned. We've been a late-inning club all year. Here we started early and lost it," Rose said.

"We've still got five games to win four," said the Reds' captain.

Sparky Anderson will assign right-hander Tony Cloninger the starting pitching assignment for the third game. The Reds dropped the first two struggles in their own par k and no team ever has come back to win the Series.

Anderson said he would use the same batting order as he did Sunday with one exception. He will use young Dave Concepcion at shortstop in place of veteran Woody Woodward.

Elrod Hendrick's wrong field double to left for two runs capped a five-run Oriole explosion in the fifth inning was the decisive hit in the second game off Milt Wilcox.

Anderson, however, sticks with Baltimore's deft-fielding third baseman Brooks Robinson as the difference in the two games.

"That guy on third base is the whole Series story so far," Anderson said. "They said Billy Cox was great with the old Brooklyn Dodgers. I have to say Robinson is the best."

"If he doesn't make the play yesterday or the ones today, we win both games," said the rookie skipper.

Robinson stopped smashes by Lee May and Hal McRae Sunday to choke off Reds' threats. Anderson, who saw Baltimore win its 16th straight game, refused to be discouraged.

"Maybe the sun will come out Tuesday and the man upstairs will smile on us," the Reds' pilot said.

Fate Sends Tony Conigliaro to California

BALTIMORE (UPI)—By one of those pure strokes of baseball irony Tony Conigliaro has become a member of the California Angels, the very same ball club against whom he nearly lost his life.

More ironic yet, the 25-year-old right fielder told close friends that if he ever had to leave the Boston Red Sox, for whom he had played seven seasons, he'd prefer to go with a club like the Angels.

He got his wish Sunday night. Conigliaro was the key figure in a six player swap in which he, catcher Gery Moses and reliever Ray Jarvis were traded to the Angels for relief ace Ken Tatum, outfielder Jarvis Tatum and second baseman Doug Griffin, who spent most of last season with Hawaii of the Pacific Coast League.

Only three years ago, Conigliaro was given the last rites of his church shortly after Jack Hamilton of California hit him in the left eye with a pitch during a game at Boston.

At first, it was feared the popular Tony C. Would lose his left eye—and then for a time the doctors thought he might die, but even though he missed the entire 1968 season, he regained his regular right field job with the Red Sox last year, and did even better this year as he drove in 116 runs, hit 36 homers and batted .266 in 146 games.

Conigliaro, who leaves his 23-year-old brother Billy behind with the Red Sox had a hunch he would be traded.

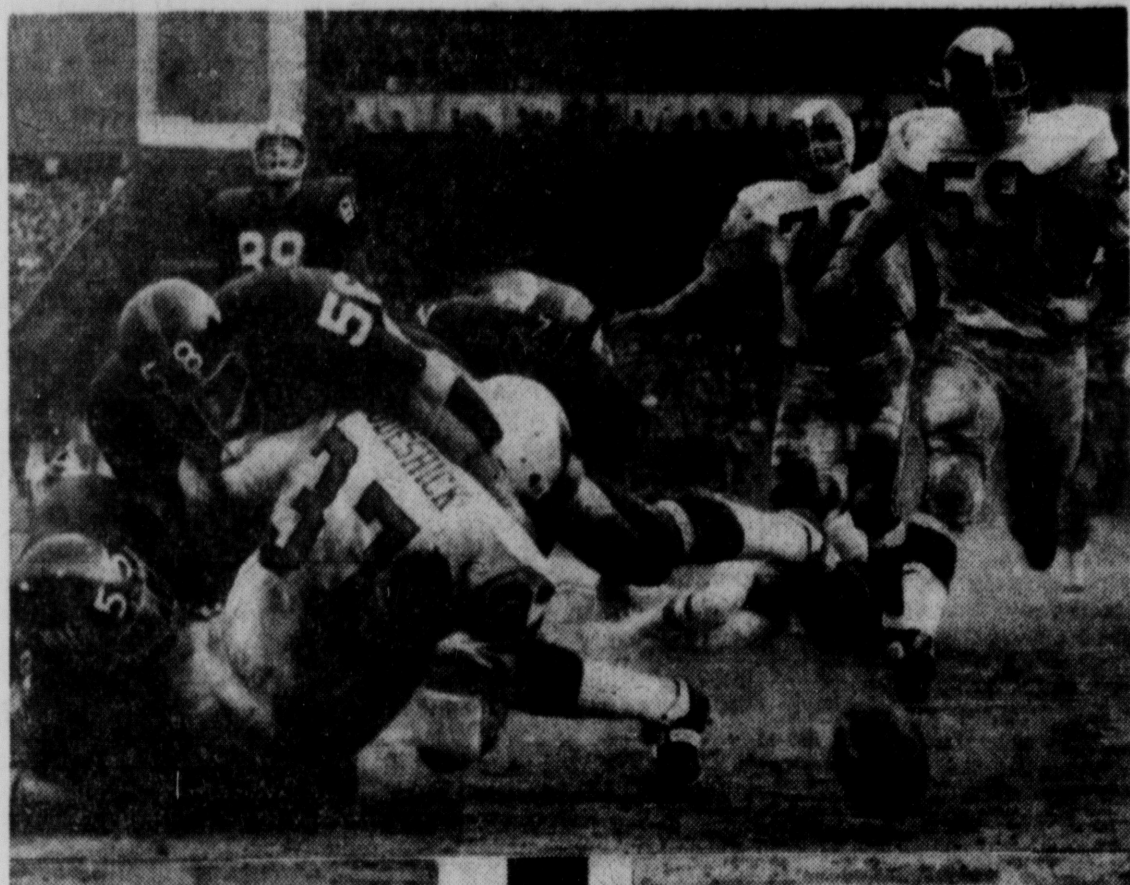

"I don't want to leave Boston," he had said. "It's my home, it's the city where I broke in, and it's where most of my friends are. If the Red Sox trade me, I won't pull a Curt Flood and I don't say I won't go, because baseball is a great part of my life and I want to play, but I hope if I am traded it's to a club like the Angels. I like Los Angeles."

The Angels are delighted to have him.

"He'll help us at the plate and he'll give us a big lift at the box office with his personality," Walsh said of the good-looking 6-3 right handed slugger who has recorded several songs, made a number of singing appearances in Boston night clubs and even authored a book entitled "Seeing It Through," which deals with his near fatal accident in August of 1967.

LOOSE BALL — Late in the last quarter, with the score tied, Philadelphia Eagle running back Tom Woodeschick (37) is smashed by Giants' Ralph Heck (55) and Jim Files (58) forcing him to fumble at Yankee Stadium yesterday. Eagles' Center Mike Evans (59) rushes to the ball, but was too late. The Giants recovered and went on to win 30-27. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Johnson Gives Giants Win

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ron Johnson burst off right tackle for a 34-yard touchdown run—his second long scoring run of the game—with only 49 seconds remaining Sunday to give the New York Giants their first victory of the season, a 30-23 triumph over the Philadelphia Eagles.

Johnson, who also scored on a 68-yard run in the first quarter and had another scoring burst of 87 yards called back because of a penalty, saved the game for the Giants, who had blown a 17-point first-quarter lead and were in danger of losing their fourth consecutive game.

The Eagles, who trailed 20-3 early in the second quarter, had rallied back behind the passing of Norm Snead to tie the game 23-23 with only 46 seconds gone in the fourth period. Snead connected on scoring passes of 20 and 79 yards to flanker Hal Jackson and also set up a one-yard scoring run by Tom Woodeschick with a 13-yard pass to Jackson.

The Giants' other scores came on a 45-yard punt return by Bobby Duhon in the first quarter and field goals of 15, 45 and 40 yards by Pete Gogolak.

Prior to Johnson's game-winning run, it appeared that Otto Brown's blocked extra point attempt following the Eagles' first touchdown had saved the Giants from another humiliating collapse.

The Eagles had tied the game on Woodeschick's one-yard run on the second play of the fourth period. Neither team could then move the ball effectively until the Giants got possession on their own 37 with 1:41 remaining.

Quarterback Fran Tarkenton, trying to get his team into field goal position, hit on successive passes to Johnson and Joe Morrison, which placed the ball on Philadelphia's 34. On the next play, Johnson burst off right tackle, cut back to the middle and raced into the end zone for the winning score.

Johnson gained 142 yards for the day in 18 carries to lead all rushers.

John Brodie, Jurgy Star

By United Press International

The two remaining undefeated teams in the National Football Conference finally met their match Sunday in a pair of aging quarterbacks.

John Brodie of the San Francisco Forty Niners and Sonny Jurgensen of the Washington Redskins, both 35-years-old, were the difference as their teams upset the Los Angeles Rams and the Detroit Lions respectively.

Brodie, off to a sensational start this season, scored on a 12-yard run and connected with Gene Washington on a 59-yard scoring pass as the Forty Niners upset the Rams, 20-0, and moved into a tie with Los Angeles for first place in the Western Division.

Jurgensen passed for three touchdowns as the Redskins walloped the Detroit Lions, 31-10.

In other NFC action, Minnesota blanked Chicago, 24-0; Dallas shutout Atlanta, 13-0; St. Louis beat New Orleans, 24-17; and New York edged Philadelphia, 30-23. Green Bay meets San Diego in an inter-conference game tonight.

Brodie hit on 13 of 20 passes for 193 yards and got good protection from his offensive line, who did not allow him to get hit with a single loss. Brodie's top receiver, Washington, grabbed seven passes for 145 yards.

The Rams managed only two field goals by Bruce Gossett, and the Forty Niners' defensive line dropped Ram quarterback Roman Gabriel twice for 22 yards and intercepted two of his passes.

Jurgensen was even better than Brodie, completing 14 of 20 attempts for 225 yards. Jurgensen hit on scoring passes of 15 and 16 yards to Charlie Taylor and on a seven-yarder to Jerry Smith.

The Lions were held to a field goal until only 4:50 was left in the game when Greg Landry, a reserve quarterback, moved them 80 yards for a touchdown.

Browns Beat Paul

By United Press International

Paul Brown, who created the Cleveland Browns dynasty in the early fifties, returned to Cleveland as coach of the recently minted Cincinnati Bengals Sunday but came away a 30-27 loser.

The Browns fought back from a 20-16 deficit with a 14-point, fourth-quarter blitzkrieg inspired by quarterback Bill Nelsen, who hit on 17 of 29 passes good for 226 yards and two touchdowns.

Cleveland scored the go-ahead TD with 1:08 gone in the final quarter when Leroy Kelly capped a 14-play, 80-yard drive with a one-yard plunge.

The win gave Cleveland a 3-1 record and first place in the Central Division of the American Football Conference.

In other AFC games Sunday, Baltimore edged Houston, 24-20; Kansas City trounced Boston, 23-10; Pittsburgh belted Buffalo 23-10, and Oakland walloped Denver, 35-23. Miami defeated the New York Jets, 20-6, Saturday night.

Game Televised Tonight

San Diego (0-2-1) meets Green Bay (2-1) in an inter-conference game on national television (9 p.m. EDT) tonight.

The Broncos had their unbeaten bubble burst when Warren Wells snared a 20-yard touchdown pass from Darlyne Lamonica in the fourth quarter to give Oakland a 28-23 lead. Wells, a five-year veteran, snagged three touchdowns in passes in the game. Lamonica rolled up 364 aerial yards on a 20-of-37 performance.

Old pro Johnny Unitas hit Roy Jefferson with a 31-yard touchdown pass with 46 seconds left to give Baltimore a 24-20 victory over the Oilers.

Houston (2-2) had taken a 20-lead on Roh Gerela's nine-yard field goal with 3:26 remaining in the final quarter.

The world champion Chiefs evened their record at 2-2 by beating Boston on a combination of Robert Holmes' bull strength and Jan Stenerud's finesse. Holmes scored twice on short plunges and Stenerud kicked three field goals.

KC Intercepts Six Passes

The excellent Kansas City secondary intercepted six Patriot passes, two off Joe Kapp, whom they faced for the first time since the Super Bowl, and four more off Mike Taliaferro.

Gene Mingo booted a 49-yard field goal in the third period to give the Steelers their first win after 16 consecutive losses. Pittsburgh had not won since the opening game of 1969.

The Bills scored on a 52-yard field goal by Grant Guthrie and a four-yard run by O. J. Simpson. Simpson, a key to the Bills' 34-31 upset of the Jets last week, was held to 60 yards in 14 attempts by the tough Steeler defense.

The Dolphins defeated the injury-plagued Jets Saturday night as Bob Griese hit Paul Warfield and Howard Twilley with short scoring passes and Garo Yepremian contributed two field goals.

Jim Turner represented the whole of the Jets' offense with 17 and 35 yard field goals.

The win boosted Don Shula's Dolphins into a tie with the Colts for the lead in the AFC East. Both teams have 3-1 records.

Wichita Team Votes to Play

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI)—Moments before the 77 players were to vote, Glen Kostal, one of the few survivors of an airplane crash that killed 13 of his teammates, stood up to speak.

The players were to decide if Wichita State University should play the remaining games on its football schedule and Kostal told the players if they decided not to play anymore this year "those players that died would have died in vain."

By a vote of 76 to 71, the players decided they wanted to pay one more tribute to their comrades.

"The overwhelming vote to continue is characteristic of the spirit this team and the injured players have shown since that tragic accident," a team spokesman said Sunday night.

Thirty persons were killed Oct. 2 when a chartered plane carrying the team, its athletic director and head coach slammed into a mountainside near Loveland Pass, Colo. The team was en route to Logan, Utah, for a game with Utah State.

"The school's colors of black and gold will now take on a new meaning," said newly appointed head coach Bob Seaman. "The black in remembrance of our fallen comrades while the gold will signify a bright and shining future for the Shockers."

The team will resume its football schedule Saturday, Oct. 24, against 10th-ranked Arkansas at War Memorial Stadium in Little Rock. The team will travel by commercial airlines.

It is believed the NCAA will grant another year of eligibility to those players who survived the crash.

The team spokesman said it was also hoped Wichita State's game with Cincinnati, scheduled for this Saturday, could be rescheduled for Oct. 31.

Why everyone's out to squash the Bug. And why they can't.

Small cars are very big now. And we made it happen. We asked people to think small and they did.

So now everybody's making small cars for the first time. But we've been making small cars for 25 years.

So anybody who gets into the game now has to play by our rules. We learned by our mistakes, and we made our mistakes years ago.

We don't make them anymore; we make Volkswagens. There are 12 million VW's all over the world, with about 4 million here in the U.S.A. And, in a way, every VW we make is a little better than the one we made before.

Because we make about 5,000 changes every year that we don't even talk about. We simply do what needs doing to make the VW work better all the time. Not to look different all the time.

So what have we got to show for 25 years?

Only the most highly developed car on the road.

We never knew how to make it any other way, and we still don't. It still helps to open a window to close a door, even on an old one.

Take any new Volkswagen. If there's a nick in the paint or on the chrome, somebody else put it there. Not us.

You won't find a jumble of wires under the dashboard. Just smooth, painted steel.

Under the hood? Shiny and smooth.

Around the engine? Shiny and smooth.

Even if you removed the door panel, you'd find it the same. Smooth and shiny.

If you saw the way we made them, you'd know why this is true.

One in eight VW employees is an inspector. And the head inspector reports to the head of the company, not to the head salesman.

Only one other car maker in the world does this; their prices start at $5,000.

Every wheel rim we turn out is inspected. 100% of them. Every brake drum. Every gas tank.

Every engine is run in before it becomes part of the car. And after. Every part that has to do with safety is individually inspected and then individually stamped with the inspector's initials.

We also have inspectors who inspect inspectors. And until a man does it right, we don't let him put his hands on it.

When a VW gets to the end of the line, an inspector checks to see that the engine, the electrical system, the brakes, and everything else that makes a VW stop and go puts out what we put in.

We make 5,000 cars a day; we check 5,000 cars a day.

Speaking of testing, we have 2 test tracks that are literally Hell on wheels. With hills and valleys and hairpin turns and cobblestone stretches that simply aren't found on American roads.

Every change we make (or don't make) lives or dies on one of our tracks.

By changing the way we change and testing the way we test, the Volkswagen we sell today is a whole other machine.

Over the years, we have practically doubled the VW's horsepower, but the engine should last even longer.

The luggage space is far greater. The car is quieter and rides better.

You still get about 26 miles to a gallon.

We've added thoughtful little things like a door pocket for the driver. And a pop-up shield to protect the dashboard when you slide out the ashtray.

Happily, we can sell you a Beetle for a mere $1780.*

And we give you interest on your money by not losing interest in your car.

We are the only car people in the world with Medi-car, the Volkswagen Diagnosis System.

As part of our continuing madness, we give you 4 free top-to-bottom checkups when you buy a new VW.

You just maintain your car according to the Volkswagen maintenance schedule. If any factory part is defective in material or workmanship, any U.S. or Canadian VW dealer will repair or replace it, within 24 months or 24,000 miles, whichever comes first. And he will do it free of charge.

In short, whatever Medi-car finds that's covered by our guarantee gets fixed free.

Every last VW dealer has this electronic Medi-car equipment, and if you already own a VW, you can get the checkups for just a few dollars.

On that topic, if you do own an older Volkswagen (even a '49), and need a part, don't worry. You can drive into any VW dealer's and he won't raise an eyebrow.

He will congratulate you and fix it. Because most VW parts, changed though they may be, still fit most VWs.

We let other people make their cars bigger and smaller and taller and shorter.

We just go on making ours longer.

Groversville Eleven Defeats Kingston

HEMMED IN FEELING—Groversville High School halfback Joe DeCristafaro (34) doesn't appear to be going anywhere as Kingston High School defenders, Ralph Longendyke (28) and Dave Kwausniski (44) move in to trap him. Two other Kingston players are coming up from the rear. Groversville won the game at Dietz Stadium Saturday, 28-6. (Freeman Photo by Kruh)

By MORT LAFFIN

KINGSTON
"You can't call us inexperienced anymore. We've played three games and should be starting to do things better. We are making basic, simple mistakes and it is costing us plenty," said Kingston football coach Tony Badalato after watching the Fighting Maroons drop their third game in a row, this time by a 28-6 score at the hands of visiting Groversville Saturday.

Possibly more devastating than the loss of the game was the injury incurred by quarterback Ralph Perry. Perry suffered a broken right wrist early in the third period and will probably be out for the rest of the season. Perry's loss leaves the quarterback duties to junior Glenn Littlefield.

Kingston kicked off to start the game and for the first three downs looked like a completely different team than the one that dropped two games to Troy and Linton. The offense moved the ball for a first down, but couldn't go any further and the Kingston 11 was forced to kick.

Groversville gave ominous warning of things to come as they drove for three straight first downs to the KHS 27 before Abe Robinson picked off a Jim Pianelli pass.

Kingston again couldn't move the ball and was forced to attempt a punt. However the pass from center was a little high and Joe Riley couldn't get a handle on the ball. He bobbled it and was forced to run, falling about one yard short of a first down.

The Huskies immediately took advantage of the break, after the changing of goals at the end of the first period and tallied on a 13-yard run right up the middle by halfback Jim Mathias. Harry Robinson faked a kick for the point and passed to Pianelli for the two-point conversion. Kingston again couldn't move and was forced to punt. However, the losers got the ball right back on a fumble recovery by Roy Washington. The Maroons still couldn't mount an offensive and Groversville started to drive again. This time the visitors, with Mathias and Robinson doing most of the work, went all the way from their own 43. Joe DeCristafaro capped the drive with a three-yard scoring spurt. Robinson went back to kick this time. But, the holder dropped the ball and the bullish Huskie fullback picked it up and blasted right through the hapless Maroon defense for the two points, making the score, 16-0.

The Maroons finally got on the scoreboard in the latter stage of the second period as Littlefield hit John Tiano on a fullback screen. The hard-nosed Kingston star gathered in the ball and went the 10 yards for the score. The try-point was missed and Groversville had a halftime lead of 16-6.

The majority of the faithful took heart in the Kingston score and felt that they should and could be able to come back. However their doom was sealed in a wild and wooly third period of play. Kingston received the kick and drove for a first down. But, the visitors' defense put the wraps on the Maroons and Perry in the second series as they piled him up after he had attempted a pass to Riley. Perry came limping off the field, holding his wrist in pain.

Littlefield went in, but failed to negotiate a drive as the Maroon offense line was unable to afford the flinger any kind of pass protection at all.

Kingston was driven further and further back to their own seven-yard line. Littlefield gave the ball to Riley for an end sweep, but Mathias hit his arm and the ball skittered from Riley's grasp into the end zone where Huskie guard Dick Warner pounced on it for a touchdown. The PAT was missed and the winners had a 22-6 lead.

Mathias scored the last TD of the game after the winners again took over. This time, he went seven yards through the heart of the KHS line and secondary, breaking three tackles to get to the end zone. The PAT again was missed and Groversville had the winning margin, 28-6.

Doug Geer Stars

Doug Geer, Highland High School's star halfback, scored three touchdowns, passed for another and ran and passed for two-point conversions as the Highlanders defeated visiting Pine Bush, 29-8 in an Ulster County Athletic League tilt Saturday.

Highland is now 2-1 in UCAFL play and 3-1 overall. The Bushmen are 1-2 in the league and 2-2 on the season.

Geer was all over the field for Coach Lem Atkins' boys as he tallied the initial score in the first quarter on a 10-yard pass from quarterback Bob Mattice. The winners had driven from the Pine Bush 42-yard line and a 28-yard pass from Geer to Brad Scott set up the TD. The try point was missed.

In the second period, Geer put Highland on the board again, this time on a one-yard drive over from 11 yards out for the score and Jim Grossi added the extra points.

SIDE BARS: The emergence of Geer as a full-fledged star at Highland gives Atkins' boys one of the most devastating scoring combinations in the UCAFL as he teams with the powerful Perry Monroe in the backfield. Geer is a fine running back, quarterback, kick return artist and defensive half.

The scrappy scabcat is the closest player in the UCAFL to the old "Triple Threat" backs of another era. He does it all and does it well.

Pioneers Nip SHS In Tough Contest

By TIM SCHUSTER

POUGHKEEPSIE
Subtract five lost fumbles from Saugerties High School's grid statistics and there might have been an upset in the making Saturday at Poughkeepsie High.

At least that was the general sentiment in the Saugerties ranks after the hard-fought contest on the hot, dusty field ended 22-14 in favor of the Pioneers.

Three of those fumbles came in the first period, one in the second, and one in the closing minutes of the fourth to kill any hopes for a tying score for the Sawyers.

Poughkeepsie trailed Saugerties in first downs 13-3, but scored two of its three touchdowns on long-yardage plays that had the fans up and screaming.

A Saugerties fumble on its own 46, recovered by Tony Johnson, set up the first Pioneer score in the opening quarter. Quarterback Jack Foster unleashed a long bomb which cleared the hands of Saugerties defenders and plopped into those of Sheldon Davis for a 47-yard touchdown.

It was still 6-0 when the second period began, with Poughkeepsie putting together an attempted onside kick, but all three of its first downs to it was covered by Poughkeepsie drive down to the nine. Amos Johnson bulled his way over for the score, followed by a two-point conversion pass to Sheldon Davis.

Saugerties got on the board in the waning minutes of the half on a fourth and ten situation on the Poughkeepsie 16. A bullet pass from quarterback Rich Koegel to Mike Bond down the middle made it 14-6 at half-time.

The backbreaker came in the fourth quarter, after a defensive third period, when Dick Clark intercepted an errant Saugerties pass and raced to his own 39.

On the next play from scrimmage speedster Amos Howard broke through the line behind good blocking and ran 61 yards in a one-sided race to the goal line. A pass to Sheldon Davis gave Poughkeepsie its 22-6 lead. Koegel replaced sub quarterback Dave Smith and whipped his team downfield in three straight first downs, including a picture 30-yard pass to end Skip Van Elancum to the two.

Sub fullback Dec White, who replaced an injured Dave Fuller early in the game, carried over the middle for the final score of the game. A pass to Van Elancum for two finalized it 22-14.

It was still 6-0 when the second period began, with Saugerties strategy included Poughkeepsie putting together an attempted onside kick, but White topped Saugerties rushers with 60 yards on nine carries and Poughkeepsie running back Amos Howard used speed for 116 yards on 10 carries including his 61-yard TD.

The big punting toe of co-captain Amos Johnson was instrumental in keeping Saugerties in had field position. Johnson boomed five punts for a staggering 54-yard average.

One key Saugerties defensive play in the second period by Gary Richardson, who blitzed the winners for a ten-yard loss, took an almost certain touchdown from Poughkeepsie as they were on the three-yard line.

Saugerties' Doug White made a similar second period picture tackle which resulted in a ten-yard loss for the driving Pioneers.

Fumble recoveries for Poughkeepsie were by Amos Howard, Sheldon Davis, Jim Winslow, Tony Johnson, and St. Germaine. Dana Holmquist intercepted a Poughkeepsie pass, and Dick Clark stole one from Saugerties.

Saugerties will take its 1-3 record against Roosevelt at home this Saturday, while Poughkeepsie takes its 3-1 DCSL mark to Kingston for a non-leaguer.

Paltz Team Defeats Foe

NEW PALTZ
New Paltz High School's football team put together a fine, all-around effort to defeat visiting Walkkill, 37-0 in an Ulster County Athletic League tilt. The win by the Huguenots kept them in a first-place tie with Rondout Valley. Both teams are 3-0 in league play. New Paltz is 3-1 overall. Walkkill is 0-3, 0-4.

The winners scored early in the first period forcing Walkkill to punt. Brad Hart returned the ball 45 yards to the Walkkill 30. On the next play, Harold Anderson, star tailback, galloped off tackle, covering the 30 yards for the score. Bill Schiller added the two point conversion on a dive up the middle and the host team was off and running.

New Paltz added two more in the second period as defensive end John Palonis, picked off a pitch-out by the Walkkill quarterback and rambled 25 yards to paydirt. Anderson added the two-point conversion on a running play off tackle.

New Paltz quarterback Jay Ackert fired a perfect strike for 10 yards to Brad Hart after his team got the ball on a punt. Hart gathered in the toss and then rambled another 48 yards for the score. Ackert scored the point after on a quarterback sneak.

Coach John Ford's boys refused to let up in the second half and added two more scores after the break.

Walkkill kicked off and the winners got the ball on the 50-yard line. Three plays later, swing back Yonnik Faulkner went 18 yards to the one-yard line. Ackert took the ball over on a QB sneak and Schiller kicked the point.

In the fourth quarter, another New Paltz swingback, Joe Williams came back against the strong side and went 45 yards for the final TD. The try for the two-point conversion failed and the final score stood, 37-0 New Paltz.

"It was a good, all-around team effort," said Ford, summing up his feelings on the game. "There were no individual standouts as such, just a finely executed offense and a very determined defense," he concluded.

New Paltz travels to Oteora next Saturday for a game against the Indians.

Dear Abby

Who Are We to Judge?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a wealthy widow who picks up the tab for an escort, 20 years her junior, who couldn't possibly afford to take her to the places she's accustomed to going? I am sure in his line of work he could never treat her on his salary.

There can't possibly be any romance in this combination, but he is attractive, flatters her, dances with her and she seems to enjoy this setup while he is taking her for all she's worth. Meanwhile, all her friends are laughing at her behind her back. It is really pitiful.

Why can't some women realize that there is more dignity in sitting home than buying an escort?

ON THE SIDELINES
DEAR ON: I take it you are sitting home. Perhaps this woman also sat home long enough to have concluded that she didn't like it. All that is necessary for a successful relationship is that two people "need" each other. She needs him. And he needs her. And as long as they aren't hurting anybody, who am I to judge them? And who are you?

DEAR ABBY: I am terribly upset about something I saw today and would like your opinion. In the supermarket this morning I saw a young mother with a cart full of groceries and three children. One toddler was riding the cart on top, and another on the bottom, then there was a little girl (about 5 years old) walking beside her, whining about something. No mother leaned over and gave that child what must have been an unmerciful twist of the ear, then the little girl began crying in earnest, whereupon the mother screamed "SHUT UP!" I cannot stand to witness cruelty. I just stood there not knowing what action I should take, if any. If I said something to that mother she might have told me to shut up and mind my own business, denied that she had hurt the child, and taken it out on the child later. I am still worried. In cases like this, should a witness interfere?

SANTA BARBARA
DEAR S. B.: There is a lot to be said for minding one's own business, but cases of outright cruelty to children (or animals) should not be ignored. A few soft spoken words into that mother's ear may help: "I know how irritating children can be and I see you have your hands full but please don't physically abuse a misbehaving child." And if she tells you to mind your own business, you're nothing out.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago, when I was 29 years old and the mother of six children, I was the matron of honor at my sister's wedding. My husband sulked for a long time over it because, as he put it, "You were too old." (I have a nice figure.)

Well, the same situation has come up again because another sister is getting married and she wants me to be her matron of honor. Now I am 31, and my husband is really mad. He said that several people (whom he refuses to name) told him they thought it was unfair for him to have to sit by himself with our six children while I do the matron of honor bit again. Can you help me? No matter what you say he will still be against it, but since I've agreed to be matron of honor anyway, it might help my conscience a little.

PAT
DEAR PAT: The word from here is, do the matron of honor bit, and don't let your conscience bother you. P.S. I hope your husband grows up before your children do.

DEAR ABBY: Like everyone else, I never thought I'd be writing to you, but when I read about the Cherokee Indian who said he could smell a poisonous snake at 40 paces, I couldn't restrain myself.

My husband is a herpetologist (a scientist who studies reptiles), and he says a venomous snake has no odor other than during the mating season; and then only the females have this odor in order to attract and excite the male. Furthermore, most nonpoisonous female snakes give off the same musky odor at mating season as the venomous snakes.

Most people's notion that snakes have an odor comes from their experience with poorly cleaned zoo cages.

SCENT-CERELY,
SANDY LINDER,
PHOENIX

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Many situations at your own home require clever and tactful handling. If you don't add fuel to any fire that is already smoldering there, the evening can be most happy.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Some confidential matter can be handled wisely today, since your judgment is excellent now. Being with persons you like later can bring excellent results. An affectionate attitude is wise.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those fascinating young people who will have great talent and ability for the arts, as well as for business. Spiritual qualities can be utilized in a practical way. Do whatever will rid your progeny of some martyr complex that could develop early if you do not do something about it. Make sure that sports are not neglected, nor the right training, schooling.

By PHIL PASTORET
For the cynic, opportunity knocks.

The smog being what it is, how're we gonna tell when the hazy days of autumn get here?

One dietitian, preparing for the annual hoohaw over the cafeteria food, has been known to linger fondly over the thought of serving the students karate chops each noontime.

Reporter who covers the little theaters grouches that he exists almost entirely on a diet of ham.

Any secretary who recalls shaving the wax cylinders for the dictating machines each morning is very foolish to do so unless she wants to date herself in the eyes of the other gals.

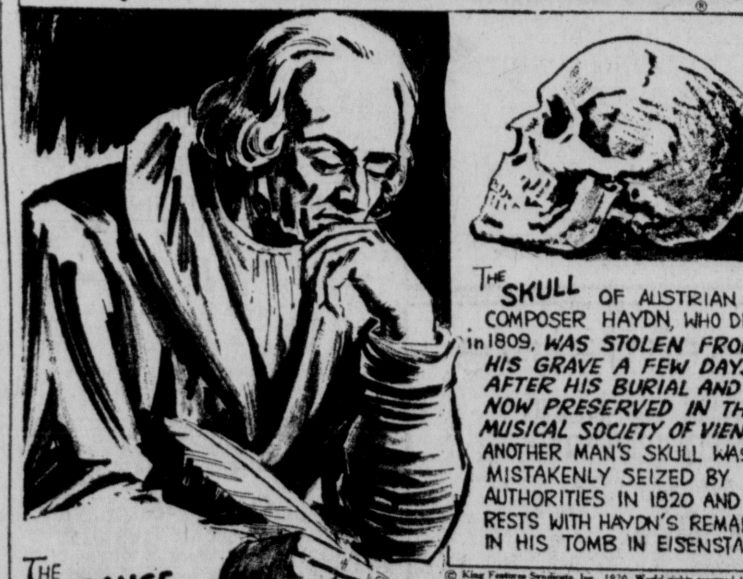

No, Gwendolyn, "bigamy" doesn't mean it was generous of you.

One thing never changes: the dried-out peanut butter in the tots' school lunches.

You have to stoop pretty low to find work that's truly beneath your dignity.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

NO SHOW: (Q.) I've been having dates with this boy off and on for months. But nothing ever happens because he doesn't show up.

The first time he asked me, he stood me up. The next time I saw him we got to talking and he agreed to teach me to drive. But he didn't show up for the lesson.

The second time he called me for a date he promised not to stand me up, but he did. He's stood me up four or five times more—every time, in fact, that he's asked me for a date. Why does he do this? Does he get a kick out of it?—Weary of Waiting in Nevada.

(A.) This boy likes to put people down. He found out he could get by with putting you down so he has made a game of it. From now on, don't give him the time of day!

Any boy worth dating does not stand a girl up. If for some genuine, unavoidable reason he can't fill a date, he calls her in advance and explains.

Going some place with some other girl is not a genuine, unavoidable reason.

LONG YEARS: (Q.) This boy and I are very close. We may be too close. I've known him since he was 7 and I was 12. I'm 18 now and he's 13.

My conscience tells me all this is wrong. I've told him that. He says he doesn't care, that he loves me. Is it too far-fetched to look forward to the future?—Beloved in Washington State.

(A.) You are right. This boy is much too young for you now.

And, because of your age, you are the one to tell him so and walk away.

When you are 27 and he's 22, OK, if you're both still single and both still interested. But not now.

'Deadly Game' A Mystery

NEW YORK (AP) — Warriors of the diamond and the gridiron were the stars of television over the weekend, to the joy of millions of sports watchers and to the dismay, perhaps, of campaigning politicians.

With NBC's coverage of the baseball World Series dominating the schedules Saturday and Sunday and with the usual assortment of football games on the three major networks, the politicians had rough going.

Television politicking now is in an intense phase with invitations to appear on network and local interview programs pearls of great price. Sports events disrupt normal programming and it is hard to attract a big audience when the competition is a live, big league sports event on another channel.

The last of the season's new series made its delayed debut Saturday night, ABC's "The Most Deadly Game." This is a series that proposes to have a team of criminologists solve a murder a week. The premiere program seemed to be almost a spoof, like Batman.

Ralph Bellamy plays the senior member of the team, the wise armchair detective dedicated to logic. George Maharis is the younger, active investigator. There is a girl, played by Yvette Mimieux, around but she didn't have much to do in the first show.

The case started with a corpse with a hole in his skull. This caused consternation until Mr. Arcane—the campy name of the brainy detective—deduced that death was caused by a sling shot. The end of the program showed Maharis being pursued through a swamp by a fanatical conservationist until he was almost swallowed by quicksand.

Since this is no year in which anything more than a bare minimum...

Jim: "Today's game contract is reached after a limit raise by North. South has only 12 high-card points for his opening bid but the singleton is worth two points additional and the jump raise has helped him, he goes on to game cheerfully."

Oswald: "A king of diamonds lead and diamond continuation would beat the heart lead. After that, South just draws trumps and concedes two diamonds and a club." (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

CR Criticism—Every President Included

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government has failed to live up to its own promises on civil rights, the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights said in a landmark study today. It laid ultimate responsibility on the quality of leadership exercised by the president.

Assistant Commission Staff Director Martin E. Sloane said the remark was not aimed specifically at President Nixon, but at "every president . . . We've never had any period in the past when civil rights was enforced at any particularly good level."

In a 1,115-page report the size of the Manhattan telephone directory, the commission said minority groups still run into an equality gap in dealing with the federal government on a variety of levels, from hiring to housing and contract compliance and regulatory agencies.

The commission called generally for much tighter surveillance of the government's performance, with more money and manpower spent on enforcement of existing laws and orders.

"The great promise of the civil rights laws, executive orders, and judicial decisions of the 1950s and 1960s has not been realized," the report said.

Part of the blame was placed on government civil rights enforcement programs the commission said have been almost uniformly stuck with second class status—too few staff, too little money, and not enough authority.

Strong remedial measures were called for, including a kind of civil service Philadelphia Plan, with deadlines to meet specific minority hiring goals, to "achieve equitable minority group representation at all wage and grade levels within each department and agency."

The study, largest ever done by the six-member commission and its staff, examined more than 40 federal agencies and programs to "try to pinpoint the status of civil rights enforcement in just about the entire federal government," Sloan said.

There was no immediate comment from the White House. But sources close to the administration called the report "very comprehensive and quite constructive," and said it would get "a lot of careful study," and "a lot of attention."

The commission criticized a wide range of federal departments and agencies, although crediting some with "marked successes."

Still, the commission said, it found "a number of fundamental weaknesses and inadequacies in civil rights compliance and enforcement that are common to most agencies . . ."

These included, in addition to inadequate staff and funding: "Undue emphasis on voluntary compliance and failure to make sufficient use of available sanctions . . ."

"Undue emphasis on a passive role, such as reliance on receipt of complaints . . ."

WASHN. Civil Rights Bjt, take 2: complaints . . .

Agencies that don't cooperate with others working in the same field.

"Failure to collect and utilize racial and ethnic data," and failure to consider civil rights enforcement as part of carrying out normal programs.

"Many of these weaknesses . . . also reflect more deep-seated problems," the commission said, "problems of hostile bureaucratic attitudes that view civil rights as a threat to their prerogatives and programs, problems of inadequate or misordered priorities . . ."

The Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, which got advance copies of the report, issued a statement commending the commission and strongly endorsing its recommendations.

The conference said the government "must act at once to correct the shameful conditions the report delineates," and pledged its full cooperation, adding that its 127 member organizations should "do all in their power" to rally their members behind a national campaign to strengthen civil rights enforcement.

Most of the report contained specific criticisms, including one aimed at the attorney general, "the most important single figure in the government's civil rights program."

He should require the Justice Department to "develop a broader perspective and set an example of imaginative and vigorous enforcement of civil rights laws," the commission said, if "he expects other agencies to cease treating civil rights as an insignificant responsibility . . ."

Justice's civil rights division has been "consistently understaffed," the report said, and went on to complain that even at the White House "there is still no systematic effort to evaluate the enforcement activities of federal agencies."

The new Office of Management and Budget, headed by former Labor Secretary George Shultz, should make civil rights "a priority issue," the commission said.

In hiring, the commission said the Justice Department's employment section has a key role but "is restricted by its small size," and by "the current practice of piecemeal litigation."

The department's civil rights division has worked to help blacks, the commission said, but "has brought no cases in which American Indians, Spanish-surnamed Americans, or women are the major victims of employment discrimination."

"Disappointing" was the word used for the Defense Department's performance.

"In two recent contract compliance matters involving Southern textile mills and a large aircraft manufacturer in St. Louis, DOD initially failed to follow its own procedures," the report said.

And despite some changes, it went on, the department's compliance program "still has serious structural defects . . . is too small and its compliance review efforts have not proved adequate . . ."

"The use of sanctions is necessary to make the enforcement program credible, yet no contract has ever been terminated nor any company debarred for executive order violation. Rarely have any hearings been held concerning noncompliance."

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, now five years old, is not much closer to ending racism in hiring, the report said, partly because of rapid staff turnover, lack of enforcement power, and "grossly inadequate" facilities.

In housing, only the Justice Department won high marks involved. Regulatory agencies have in most cases ignored their civil rights responsibilities, the commission said, when they should be using their powers to create new opportunities for minorities.

The activities of other agencies in the field were termed "disappointing," including the Department of Housing and Urban Development, which hasn't made the best use of the tools it has, the report said.

The Veterans Administration was criticized for guaranteeing loans as late as last April on property carrying racial restrictions.

And, said the commission, the agencies regulating banks and savings and loan institutions are not checking sufficiently to make sure their clients comply with fair housing laws.

In the area of federally assisted programs—Social Security, small business loans, farm subsidies, urban renewal, aid to education, and a variety of direct grants or loans—the commission said civil rights enforcement wasn't given high enough

U.S. Viet Strength Dips Below 384,000

SAIGON (UPI) — The United States has reduced its troop strength in South Vietnam below the 384,000 men called for in President Nixon's Phase Four withdrawal program, the U.S. Military Command said today.

The regular weekly troop strength report showed there were 384,600 U.S. servicemen in the war zone as of Oct. 8, but spokesmen said "further reductions" had brought the total below the authorized ceiling of 384,000 ordered by Nixon for Oct. 15.

The final elements of the 199th Light Infantry Brigade departed Vietnam Sunday along with elements of the 2nd and 3rd Battalions, 7th Marine Regiment, and the 3rd Battalion of the 11th Marine Regiment, spokesmen said. Also leaving within the past 24 hours were the last units of the 3rd Brigade, 9th Infantry Division, and 2nd Squadron, 1st Cavalry.

In Cambodia, Communist gunners Sunday shot down the third U.S. observation aircraft in 11 days, Cambodian military sources said in Phnom Penh today. One American was killed in the crash and another was missing.

The sources inside the Cambodian High Command said the aircraft was shot down near the city of Samrong 210 miles northwest of Phnom Penh. It was identified as an OV10 Bronco.

According to the Cambodian sources three American OV10s rushed to the area where the plane was brought down but were driven off by gunfire. Cambodian military officers in the area told the high command

Big Jewel Job

Sophia Loren, with arm around her secretary Inez Bruscia, leaves police headquarters in New York Sunday after looking at mug shots in an attempt to identify the men who robbed her of some $650,000 in cash and jewelry. Inez Bruscia was reportedly slugged during the holdup, when gunmen forced their way into the screen star's Hampshire House apartment. Included in the loot taken by the four thugs was an estimated $100,000 in gems that had been lent to the 36-year-old star by the world famed firm of Van Cleef and Arpels. The rest were personal property of the star. Carlo Ponti, Miss Loren's husband, was in Milan, where he was called by the death of his father Saturday. (UPI Telephoto)

Cong Still Not Rejecting the Nixon Plan

PARIS (UPI) — The head of the Viet Cong delegation to the Paris talks said today the French Communist party newspaper cease-fire offered by President Nixon unacceptable unless it is coupled with a political settlement on Communist terms.

Madame Nguyen Thi Binh, in an interview with the French Communist party newspaper L'Humanite, said Nixon's five-point proposal to end the war in Indochina was "not acceptable." But she did not use the word "reject" in referring to it.

"We have analyzed with care the speech of Mr. Nixon and we see his so-called peace plan is destined neither to give progress to the Paris conference nor to aid in a peaceful settlement. That is why we consider it not acceptable."

Both the Viet Cong and North Vietnam criticized the Nixon proposals in similar language at Thursday's meeting of the Vietnam talks.

"We wish a cease-fire, Mme. Binh said, "but only as a first step towards lasting peace, that is, a cease-fire which would be founded on a correct political settlement, on the guarantee of the fundamental national rights of the Vietnamese people."

"It is in that sense that we made our proposals Sept. 17," the Communists at that time demanded all American troops be withdrawn from South Vietnam by June 30, 1971.

Mme. Binh repeated that demand and said "immediately the we will cease attacking American troops in the process of withdrawing. Immediately we will discuss liberation of all the captured soldiers — a problem which Nixon uses all the time to mislead opinion and to cover the crimes committed by the United States."

Of Nixon's proposal for an international peace conference in Indochina, Mme. Binh said, "It is not changing the form of the conference which will settle the Vietnam problem, it is the policy of the U.S. government can troops in the process of which must change."

Episcopalians Seek Solution

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Episcopal Church's 63rd triennial general convention today began seeking solution of conflicts shaking the denomination. PAGE 2

The Rev. David Arnold, rector of St. Gregory's Episcopal Church, Woodstock, is attending the General Convention. He will interpret the events at the convention and report to the Diocesan offices any special reports from clergy and wardens at home.

Its presiding bishop, the Right Rev. John E. Hines, said the deliberations may prove to be the most significant in the 3.4-million-member Church's history.
